$30,000 STOCK Of Goods For Sale!

Beginning Thursday, January 17, and continuing for 30 days, we will sell our entire stock of dry goods, boots, shoes, hats, clothing and groceries at actual wholesale cost. Everything goes in this sale except wagons and farm implements. A large assortment of buggies is included in this cost sale. We have over-bought for the season and want to reduce our $30,000 in the next 30 days to $15,000. If you are "from Missouri" we can "show you" we are doing what we claim. This sale will be for spot cash--nothing will be charged--as we need the money more than we need the goods. President Roosevelt could not buy on credit from us during this sale. FRANCIS DEMOCRATS TAKE THE INITIATIVE

The News is indebted to Mr. J. O. McMinn, editor of the Francis Bulletin, for the following notes concerning an important recent meeting of the Francis democratic club, at which the following well-known gentlemen from Ada made addresses:

H. M. Furman, J. F. McKeel, T. D. McKeown, J. W. Bolen and J. E. Grigsby.

This patriotic, progressive club took the initiative in territorial democracy by the adoption of this admirable resolution:

"Resolved, That all candidates for office from constable to senator who desire the support of this club must be submissive to the wish and will of the people as expressed through the primary elections and not through conventions."

The action was taken because of the fact that conventions are no longer expressive of the wishes of the people, the true sovereigns of the land, but are packed and run by politicians and those serving special interests

Robt Wimbish, W. L. Nettles and W. A. Chitwood went to Wewoka last night and organized a K. of P. lodge of 40 members. They made a flying trip, returning via the morning M. K. & T.

THE BILL BOBBED UP ONLY TO DISAPPEAR

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Senate reached the statehood bill Monday morning while considering the calendar, but on objection by Mr. Lodge its reading was not permitted. Mr. Lodge is a friend to the bill, so that his objection signifies nothing more than that the Senate is not yet ready to fix a time for its consideration. The subsidy bill is unfinished business. There is no likelihood of its being brought to a vote for several weeks, and its advocates will probably give way to the statehood bill when Mr. Beveridge can get the Senate in a humor to accede to his importunities. When this will be not even Mr. Beveridge knows, though he has expressed the hope that within ten days he will be able to have a time fixed for its consideration. The most significant statement when the bill was reached, was that of Mr. Foraker, who took occasion to say that he had no intention of filibustering on the measure. He declared that he was ready to vote on it at any time. This is taken to mean that Mr. Foraker is sure that a majority of the Senate are opposed to the measure as it came from the House. He had frequently asserted as much, and it is now admitted by a number of the bill's supporters that the effort to inflict statehood on Arizona will not be sanctioned by the Senate. The general opinion is that rather late in the session the bill will be sent back to the House short of the provision respecting New Mexico and Arizona, and that the House will concur in the amendment. The President, it is said on good authority, has fortified himself for defeat on this part of the White House program.

MAY ASK PRESIDENT TO INTERVENE IN COAL STRIKE

New York, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt will doubtless be called upon in a few days to use his influence in averting a general strike of anthracite and bituminous coal miners. Opinions of leaders at the mines and operators in this city indicate that without the interposition of some potent influence outside of the conflicting interests a strike of greater proportions than has ever before been known in this country is inevitable. Nothing that occurred in the mining districts today gave promise of a peaceful outcome of the dispute. The executive boards of the three anthracite districts adjourned in Indianapolis without making any headway toward a basis of settlement, and are to meet again on Friday in Wilkesbarre with John Mitchell.

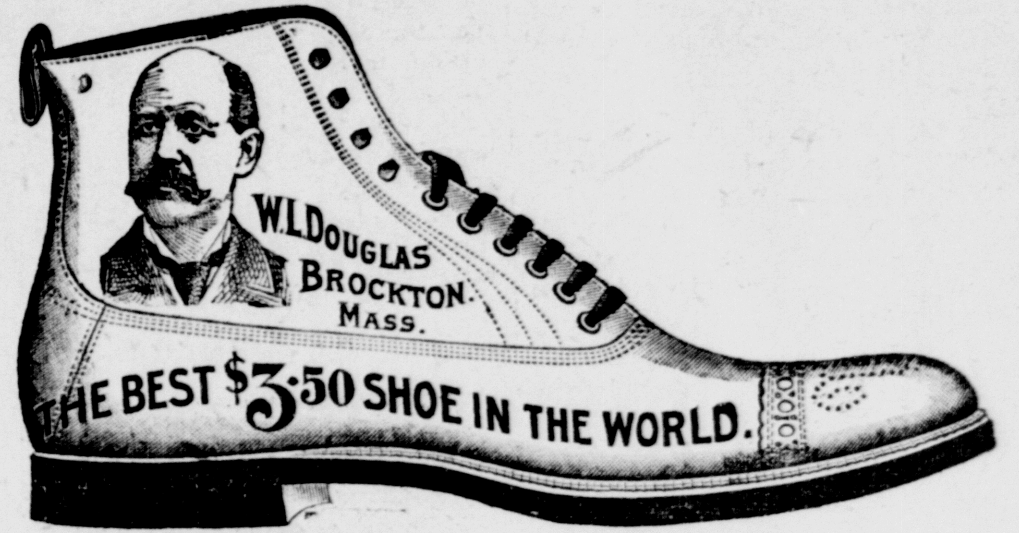

MR. LAWSON'S INSURANCE PROGRAM NOT ANNOUNCED

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 6.—After a continuous conference of nine hours Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, author of "Frenzied Finance," was coaxed out of Parlor N in the Palmer House last night long enough to confess that the mission which brought him to Chicago had failed to develop sufficiently for the general public to be taken into his confidence. In another twenty-four hours he said he might be in a position to make an announcement of interest. This will depend greatly however, on the result of a conference which he will have with Gov. Cummins of Iowa at Des Moines Wednesday. Mr. Lawson left for Iowa at 10:30 o'clock last night. Mr. Lawson admitted that yesterday's long conference concerned insurance problems, but refused to give even an inkling of the details of the deal which he is evolving.

THE CASTELLANES AT LAST IN THE DIVORCE COURT

Paris, Feb. 6.—Countess Boni de Castellane (formerly Anna Gould) entered a plea for divorce yesterday. Representatives of the Count and Countess appeared before a judge, who, according to the French law, endeavored to arrange a conciliation before allowing a definite suit to proceed. It is said that the Judge was not successful and the suit will proceed, but owing to the secrecy in divorce proceedings here it is difficult to confirm this report. Sensational reports have been circulated with reference to the Count's conduct and the name of a prominent society leader of Paris, a woman of very high standing, has been mentioned in connection with the affair, but the greatest reticence has been maintained by all the parties concerned relative to the progress of the negotiations looking to a conciliation and even this morning a favorable result was expected, especially as the Countess returned to her residence. It now appears that the efforts of those interested in bringing about a settlement of the differences between the Countess and the Count were unavailing.

LITTLE STORIES WITH A TOUCH OF HUMOR.

Hiram Haymow Deliberately Adds Insult to Injury—Proposition Favored by Mr. Justwed—Why Meandering Mike Came Back.

The Discreet Opera Singer.

"Madame, madame," cried the bell-boy at the door, "there is a burglar on this floor! Open the window and sing for help!"

The favorite of the opera stage frowned darkly.

"I nevaire sing," she said, "unless I as quite of zee certainty zat I get zee pr-r-ice."

Whereupon she closed her eyes and rolled over for another nap.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Out in the Cold.

Wearily Willie—This kicking me out of your barn into the snow is what I should call a rather summary proceeding.

Hiram Haymow—Waal, if you sit in that wet snow for a little while you'll think it's more wintry than summery!

A Shadow of Discontent.

"It is upon the farmer that the greatness of this country really depends," said the persuasive statesman.

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornstossel; "but sometimes I think I'd like to be one of the fellers that didn't have so much dependin' on 'em so I could have time to wear good clothes and go to a few parties."

A Consistent Mendicant.

"Are you here again?" said the kind-hearted woman.

"Yes, lady," answered Meandering Mike, "I have returned."

"Didn't I give you all the turkey and mince pie you wanted yesterday?"

"You did. An' I'm back with one more request. Have you got any dyspepsia medicine you could spare?"

Oh!

Bill—Congratulate me; I'm engaged. Jill—Why, I understood she rejected you?

Strange.

"Of all the stupid ignoramuses Neureich is positively the worst."

"Yes?"

"Positively! What—what he doesn't know would fill any quantity of books."

An Impression of Art.

"After all," said the transcendentalist, "what is art?"

"I don't know exactly," answered Mr. Cumrox, "but in a general way I should say it was most anything that cost you more than two dollars a seat to look at."

GOT HALF OF MINISTER'S FEE

Transaction Added Little to the Cabman's Bank Account.

John had the name of being the jolliest man in town. But tonight, which was apparently the worst night in the year, even John wore a long face, and as he swung his cab door open for the minister to enter, John's doleful expression was so noticeable that the minister inquired if he were thinking about the work of cleaning off the mud in the morning.

"No, it is not the work that I'm thinking of. If I could make as much as you this evening, I wouldn't mind it a bit."

"Well," replied the minister, "I am to marry a couple this evening and I'll give you half of my fee for driving me out and back."

"It is a deal," replied John.

After an hour of dreary driving through cold and rain John drew up in front of a small house in which the service was to take place. It was two long hours of cold waiting before the minister re-entered the cab, and the home drive was made. With a spirit of expectancy John once more swung open the cab door in front of the minister's house. The minister stepped out, and as he entered his own door he turned and said:

"Five hundred thanks, John," leaving the bewildered cabman to figure out what his exact fee had been.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Impossible to Trace Clearly the Words "Tart" and "Pie."

Usage alone must decide the issue between "pie" and "tart," which has returned to us with the gooseberries, says the London Chronicle. Philology, at any rate, draws no clear distinction. It only traces back "tart" to the Indian "tortus," twisted—the pastry being the twisted part, of course, while it is very doubtful about "pie." On the whole, Skeat's conjecture that this expresses the miscellaneous nature of the contents is persuasive. All the "pies" seem to go back to the original one, the magpie—in Latin, "pica"—from whose black and white aspect comes "pied" and "piebald." The old ordinal or service book was called "pica" or "pie" because of the appearance of the black letter type on a white page, and the edible pie, having equally mixed contents, may have been christened after this by medieval humor. Printers' language retains both "pica" for a kind of type and "pi" for type all jumbled up.

"Demagogue" Means Leader.

"Demagogue," which means merely a leader of the people, seems doomed of attract an evil sense to itself. In English, Dryden and Swift used it in a good or neutral sense, the latter applying it to Demosthenes and Cicero; and John Richard Green wrote enthusiastically of Pym as "the grandest of demagogues." But the manner in which it was used in the "Eikon Basilike," attributed to Charles I, led Milton to speak of it as "a goblin word," and that is how it is invariably used to-day. In its native Greek its history was similar. It could be applied to statesmen such as Pericles, but, from being used by Greek Tories contemptuously to characterize such popular leaders as the leather seller Cleon, it could eventually be defined by Aristotle as "flatterer of the democracy."

Ownership of Extracted Teeth.

It is well known that a corpse is not property, but what about an extracted tooth? So far as we know the point has not arisen in the courts of this country. At Gera, in Germany, however, it has just been decided that the tooth still belongs to the man after it has left his jaw. The dentist contended that a tooth evicted from occupancy with the full consent of its landlord became ownerless and derelict and as the particular tooth in question was curiously shaped he proposed to keep it. But the patient wished to have it. And the patient won.

Living on Next to Nothing.

What a thrifty person can do on a miserably small income was shown by a one-time curate of Thulfeld, in Cumberland, Eng., Alexander Naughtley, whose entire income was £8 15s a year. Mr. Naughtley lived absolutely alone, slept on a bed of straw, and cooked his own scanty food; but he never failed to present a respectable appearance to the world, while not a word of complaint ever passed his lips.—London Answers.

Keeping Strength at Maximum.

"First, last and all the time, if you wish to avoid catching cold," says a writer in a local medical journal, "keep your strength at the maximum. Whenever the vitality is lowered by overwork, poor food, worry or by any other cause, our power of resistance is impaired and an opening is made for the thousand and one agencies of disease which are continually seeking to break in."

Mirror Saved Children.

An almost miraculous escape from death was that of two little children in a bungalow in Bengal. A tiger rushed out of the jungle and broke in after the children. As he rushed at them he came across a looking glass, and there he saw what he took to be another tiger rushing at him. Furiously he attacked his reflection, smashing the glass into ten thousand pieces. The noise and excitement so frightened him that he fled into the jungle, leaving the children unharmed.

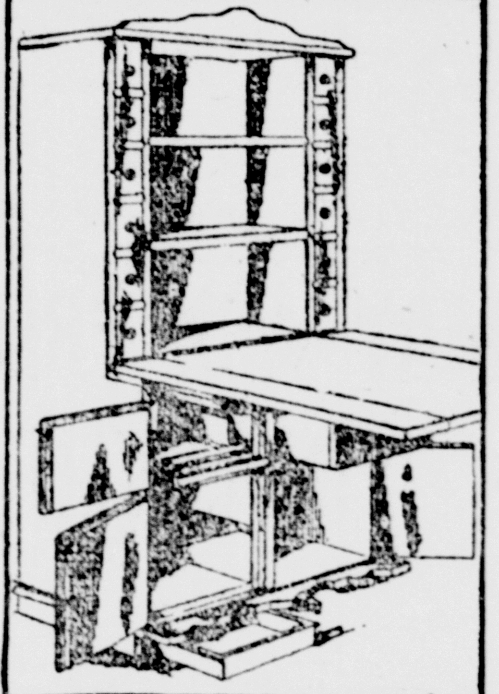

SHOWING THE WORLD'S PROGRESS

Wonders of Science.

If we no longer live in an age when Lord Beaconsfield's famous phrase, "Young men prattle protoplasm," it is only because of the inexhaustible resources of science, which have distracted our attention with later discoveries. Nowadays the public mind is prepared for anything and therefore the announcement that a practical process has been discovered for extracting nitrogen from the atmosphere, and for making it available to agriculture as the basis of a chemical manure, will probably only create a mild sensation. The announcement, if it be substantiated, is of the utmost consequence, however. It solves a problem which has long disquieted both agriculturists and scientists. The fertility of the soil is by no means inexhaustible, and the supply of fertilizing material from the Chilean nitrate fields is also confined to easily calculable dimensions. "Wherewith then shall the earth be salted?" is the question that presents itself, and it is a question which certain Norwegian experimentalists claim to have solved.

Combination Cabinet.

It is an absolute necessity to have a cupboard and refrigerator in every household; but an added advantage is to have both in combination with a cabinet. The housewife will recognize the advantage of having a cabinet in close proximity to the refrigerator, as many articles of food can be placed in it and still be near enough to the ice to be kept cool. The piece of furniture shown here, devised by a Canadian, is made in three parts constructed in combination and arranged as an upright stand. The latter is divided into two lower sections—the refrigerator and cabinet, and the upper section, or cupboard. The refrigerator is again divided into a cooling box and an ice chest, both being closed by a door. The cooling box has a number of perforated shelves for supporting articles. Extending the entire height of the cupboard at each side is a tier of drawers, the remainder being divided into shelves. The door consists of three sections hinged together, the three opening downward and forming the top of a table. When it is desired to arrange the furniture as a table or workbench a brace extending from the shelf is drawn out and the door of the cupboard let down and allowed to rest on the brace, which supports the outer end and also prevents the door from sagging. By arranging the several parts in combination the inventor has provided several conveniences in a very compact form, the combination being especially useful in small places where room is at a premium.

Turbine-Driven Locomotive.

So successful has been the turbine or stationary and marine engines that it is not strange that efforts should be made to use it in connection with locomotives. It has been proposed to mount a steam boiler and turbine on a locomotive, and use the power to drive a dynamo which would supply current to the motors similar to those of an ordinary electric locomotive. Recently, however, Prof. Stumpf, of the Royal Technical School at Charlottenburg, Germany, has invented a locomotive where the turbines are directly connected with the axles.

There are three driving axles, and the plan involves using the steam in successive stages in the turbines, which are placed outside of each driving wheel. The steam is introduced into the first turbine on one side through a pipe direct from the boiler, and then passes successively through the second and third turbines on the same side. It then goes to a set of turbine on the other side of the locomotive, from the last of which the exhausted steam passes into the stack through the exhaust blast nozzle. The outcome of the new invention will be awaited with interest, not only on account of the extension of use of the turbine, but also for the fact that the modern steam locomotive is an uneconomic piece of machinery, requiring given quantity of power.—Montreal Herald.

Entering a Demurrer.

"Obviously," said the lecturer, "what we need is a more elastic currency, for the reason—"

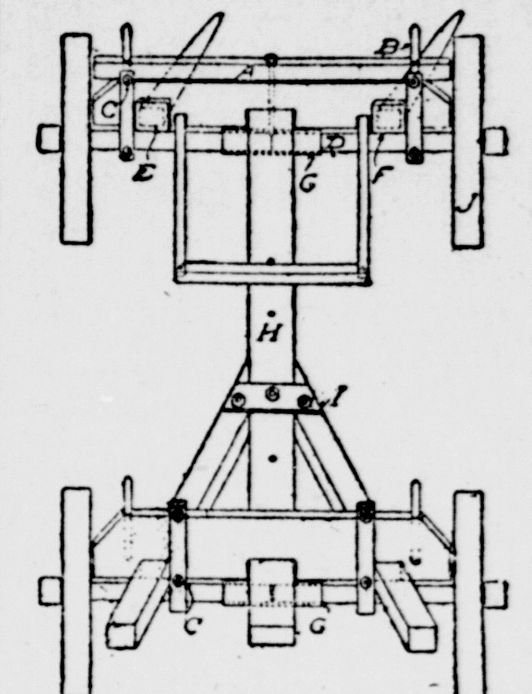

"Not me," interrupted the shabby man in the front row. "What I need is a more adhesive currency."

Whereat there was loud applause. It appeared there were others.

TRUCK HANDY FOR FARM WORK.

Design Shown Can Be Constructed Very Cheaply.

Many uses can be found for a low wheeled, broad tired truck that can be driven over soft ground. If stones are to be hauled the lifting will be made easier, and in spraying potatoes, a pump can be rigged on the platform to distribute the mixture over half a dozen rows at a time. The truck shown in the illustration can be constructed at very little expense, except for bolts. The butt of a large elm or maple can be sawed off to make the four wheels. An oak tree, if it is available, will furnish the timber for the axles and frame.

Material for Foundation.

I wish to build a stone foundation under house 30 feet by 40 feet. The house has a heavy frame of ten-inch pine timber. There is a large cellar under it which, however, does not extend to the outside wall. What would the stone foundation cost?

The amount of material for a stone wall for cellar under a house 30 feet by 40 feet, 7 feet high and 1 foot and a half thick, would be as follows: Stone, 14 3/4 cords; sand, 15 yards; lime, 75 bushels. If cement mortar is used it would take 30 barrels cement. To raise house use jack screws, raising the house to height required, care being taken to raise it evenly all around so as not to crack the plaster. Block up with blocks at each corner. Use a needle beam, having same passing through under sills and ends resting on blocks outside of house. Keep this beam about two feet back from corner of house so as to allow the corner to be built up to sills. When walls are done remove beam and fill up the space where the beam was. To block up center of sills use a beam across under sill, one end resting on a post in cellar and the other end on blocks outside of house. This will give you a clear space for excavating building walls.

Building Without Frames for Molding.

I am thinking of building a house, and I wish to do as much of the work as possible myself. I have good stand and gravel to use for concrete, but I find the machines for molding the blocks are expensive. Would it pay to try and make a frame for molding or could a hollow wall be built with out molding into blocks?

If you do not care to buy or rent a machine for making the hollow concrete blocks, would advise you building a hollow concrete wall, which is done the same as a solid wall, except having a beveled plank set in center of wall and when walls are built to top of planks these can be lifted out leaving a space. Or take two 7-8 inch boards with long wedges between them set in position and when ready to lift, loosen wedges and the boards will come out easily. A good way to tie wall together is by using hoop iron bent up at each end and bedded in the concrete. For a dwelling house where the walls are strapped, lathed and plastered. A solid concrete wall is considered to be a good dry and warm wall. The air space between the lath and wall prevents the dampness from striking through.

The Kiln.

Would you inform me as to the best way to build a small tar kiln for taking tar from pine trees?

A kiln is not always necessary for obtaining the tar from pine, though there should be some covering. In the forests of North Carolina the wood is piled in conical heaps, covered with earth and then fired, the tar being collected at the bottom of the pile. A kiln of brick or stone could be built the size required, the essential part being the arrangement at the bottom for receiving the tar.

Antiquity of Wheat.

Of the cereals it will be agreed that wheat occupies a pre-eminent position, and no matter in what country it is grown, it is held in the highest esteem, being even in some cases looked upon with something approaching reverence. Its origin dates back from time immemorial, for reference is made to its being cultivated in China at so remote a period as 3,000 B. C., being likewise considered a very important crop in ancient Egypt and Palestine, just as it is in all the temperate regions of Europe, Asia and Africa. It is also recorded that common wheat, contained in vessels which were so thoroughly sealed as even to retain both the form and color of the grain was also discovered in the sepulchres of the Egyptian kings at the time when the French army entered Egypt, these grains being closely examined by naturalists and scientists accompanying the army.

A sense of one's own integrity will make one pass by injuries more easily.—Bishop Wilson.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—of all other Cold Water Starches are put up in 3/4-pound packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 ozs." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one thing is true, the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst the writers we find such medical lights as Prof. Finner, Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Sander, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover, C. of New York; Dr. Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostrates, anteverision and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up discharges and weakens drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind it is not a patent medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated physician, of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments, who frankly and candidly takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of our paper medicine put up for woman's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal thus frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking?

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to preserve health and beauty is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only; in cloth binding 31 stamps.

"We Have Many Similar."

The following is an extract from a letter received from Mr. H. H. Meyers of Stuttgart, Ark.: "You would greatly oblige me if you would introduce Hunt's Lighting Oil at Milledgeville, Ill., as I have many friends and relatives there, in whom I am much concerned, and I understand the Oil is not kept there. I can recommend it as the best medicine I ever had in my house. It cured me of a bad case of the bloody flux in less than one-half an hour, and it cured my granddaughter of a bad case of cholera morbus in a very short time."

It isn't what you know, but what you can make others believe you know that counts.

A DESPAIRING WOMAN.

Weak, Nervous and Wretched From Wasting Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Henry A. Reamer, Main and Garst Sts., South Bend, Ind., says: "When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was so weak I could hardly drag myself across the room. I was wretched and nervous, and had backache, bearing-down pain, headache, dizziness and weak eyes. Dropsy set in and bloating of the chest choked me and threatened the heart. I had little hope, but to my untold surprise Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief and saved my life. I shall never forget it."

GEN. GRANT'S SHREWD SCHEME.

Long Time Enemies Reconciled by Humor of Situation.

The officers on Governor's Island are telling an excellent story on Gen. Fred Grant. It seems that two soldiers had been in the habit of getting into a scrap every day and were constantly up before their colonel for discipline. Every sort of mild punishment was tried without avail till at last the commander of the department of the east was appealed to. After taking a horizontal view of it the general sent for the sergeant major and said: "Just see that those two men, Crowley and Hitchins, clean all the barrack windows, Crowley to do the outside while Hitchins attends to the inside, and, recollect, neither man is to leave any window till the other has finished." The scheme was highly successful. The enemies scowled thunderously, even murderously, at each other for five windows, but flesh and blood could hold out no longer. At the sixth they burst out laughing and have been the best of friends ever since.

It must be an awful lot of fun to be so rich you can grumble about how poor you are.

Now, if the milliners would only convince the women that turkey feathers were the proper thing for trimming hats—But, pshaw! If they did the price of turkey feathers would be as high as the wise turkey roosts.

If you don't get the biggest and best it's your own fault. Defiance Starch is for sale everywhere and there is positively nothing to equal it in quality or quantity.

Lights Out

"So that young man's gone at last," said the girl's mother. "You and he have been occupying the parlor pretty regularly here of late, and I'd like to know what his intentions are. Do you know?"

"Well," was the dear girl's ambiguous reply, "he keeps me a good deal in the dark."—Philadelphia Press.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

Nervous Distortion of Face Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

What appears to be a slight nervous attack may be the forerunner of a severe disorder. No nervous sufferer should neglect the warning symptoms, but should see that the starved nerves are nourished before the injury to the delicate organism has gone to an extent that renders a cure a difficult matter. The nerves receive their nourishment through the blood, the same as every other part of the body, and the best nerve tonic and food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The experience of Mr. Harry Bemis, of Truthville, Washington county, N. Y., substantiates this.

"I had been feeling badly for a long time," said Mr. Bemis, "and in the early part of September, 1902, I was compelled to quit work on account of my ill health. My trouble was at first extreme nervousness, then my sight became affected and I consulted an oculist who said I was suffering from paralysis. He treated me for some time, but I got no benefit. I tried another doctor and he failed to obtain any relief. My nervousness increased. Slight noises would almost make me wild. My mouth was drawn so I could scarcely eat and one eye was affected so I could hardly see. I had very little use of my limbs, in fact I was almost a complete wreck. I am all right now and am at work. That is because I followed my wife's advice and took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She had used the same remedy herself with the most gratifying results and she persuaded me to try them when it appeared that the doctors were unable to help me. They acted very surely in my case; my face came back into shape and in time I was entirely well."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or by mail by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet on Nervous Disorders sent free on request.

ART NOT BOUGHT BY THE TON.

Involving Contract That MacMonnies Came Near Making.

Of late years Frederick MacMonnies, the sculptor, has had so many commissions to do groups of sculpture that he has made it a rule never to enter a competition with other artists for an order, says the World's Work. In this connection a story is told of an American city that asked him to enter a design for army and navy groups for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. He declined to compete. The commission was tendered him outright. He submitted sketches of his idea for the groups. The committee in charge of the monument wrote him, asking:

"How many tons of granite do you intend to use in the base?"

His reply was: "If you are in the business of buying granite, you may use as much as you want, one ton or 100,000 tons. I am an artist and I have never yet heard of art being bought by the pound."

The question was dropped until the contract for the commission was drawn. When Mr. MacMonnies received it, he discovered in it a clause providing that in case the bronzes were ever thrown down from their base for any cause whatever, and any person or property should be injured, he, an his heirs forever should be liable for the damage sustained. He returned the contract without comment, unsigned. When the committee wrote him asking the reason, his brief reply was: "Your lawyers are too sharp."

WANTED TO MAKE HEAVY BET.

Jack McAuliffe Went High in the Animal Scale.

"When Val-d'Or won the Prix Monarque at Maisons-Lafitte, near Paris, not long ago," said Francis Breckenridge Douglas, a breeder of thoroughbreds at Lexington, Ky., "I heard the most remarkable wages ever offered on a horse. I happened to be near Representative Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, and his party of Americans. The French bookmakers have borrowed English slang betting terms, but they have changed the values. A 'pony' is 500 francs, and a 'monkey' is 12,500 francs.

"In the hearing of our party, William K. Vanderbilt bet a 'monkey' on Val-d'Or, and William Duke, his trainer, laid a 'pony' on the same horse. Mr. Sullivan's friend, Jack McAuliffe, the former lightweight pugilist champion of the world, liked another horse. Also he heard the 'pony' and 'monkey' bets. With his cigar tucked up in the left corner of his mouth, Jack strode up to the French bookie, pointed at the card and commanded: "Here! I'll bet you an elephant on my horse, Finasseur."

"Jerry" Was Registered.

When the late Col. Rowell was chairman of the board of registrars of voters in Somerville the applicant for registration was given the full test required by law, and frequently the examinations of a would-be voter was extremely amusing, says a writer in the Boston Herald.

On one occasion "Jerry" Shea, a pedler, appeared before the board. He was a shrewd chap, and possessed a keen sense of humor. After the usual preliminary questions, "Jerry" was invited to put his hand into the box containing a number of cards bearing extracts from the state constitution and draw forth one and read it to the colonel.

It happened that the card he drew had reference to the salary of the Governor. "Jerry" read it slowly, and apparently painfully. When he had finished the reading the colonel glanced at him sharply and said: "What is salary?"

Jerry smiled and said, most blandly: "Why, colonel, I have sold all that I had to-day for 8 cents a bunch." He was registered.

Functions of Taste Nerves.

A wine expert was tasting wines. In tasting sweet wines he lowered his head upon his breast. In tasting dry or sour ones he threw his head back. "Why do you do that?" said a spectator.

"I don't know. Habit, I guess," the expert replied.

"You do it," the spectator explained, "because the front of your tongue can only taste sweet things and the back of it only sour things and the movement of your head is for the purpose of throwing the wines upon the right part of your tongue. The taste nerves have different functions, some handling sweets, others sour, others bitters and so on, just as the muscles have different functions, some working the leg and some the arm."

"Well, well," said the expert. "You surprise me. At the same time I'm sure you are right. Everybody, come to think of it, holds sweet things on the forepart of the tongue to get their flavor and sour things on the hind part."

Where Dreams Are Sold. At the sly sign of the Poppy. At a shop that is never old. Where the twilight silence lingers. It is there that dreams are sold.

There's the scent of love's lost roses. The soft echo of childhood's laugh; There's the ring of empty glasses. For the white lips never quaff.

To the crimson sign of the Poppy. We shall come when the daylight dies. When the curfew music quivers. 'Neath the gray of evening skies.

Just beyond the gates of sunset. Where the grim toll of death we pay. We shall find the shop of dream-wares. Where the poppies hang away.

So, we long for the dusk of twilight. When with wealth or no earthly gold. We shall come where sleep-flowers cluster. To the shops where dreams are sold.

CONFERRED TITLE ON HIMSELF.

How San Francisco Merchant Acquired Military Honor.

"The martial spirit that pervades Europe makes the average civilian very much of a nonentity as he journeys about the gay capitals across the water," remarked Henry Stern. "Which leads up to the advice that, if you want to attract attention when you go to Europe, you want to have a military title attached to your name. The fact was forcibly impressed on my mind while I was on a European tour some time back. The clerk at the Grand Hotel in Paris remarked to me that two distinguished officers from my city had been spending some time at the hotel a little while before. I was curious to see who they were, so we looked back over the register for their names. We found them without much trouble. The first to greet my gaze was written down in this fashion:

"Col. M. H. Hecht, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A."

"Further down on the page," interrupted the clerk, "you will notice the name of Gen. Salz."

"There, in a bold hand, was inscribed 'Jacob Salz, Gen. Mer., San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A.'"

"What actually happened was this as I subsequently learned. Salz, who is well known as the owner of a big tannery at Benicia, arrived at the hotel, and, noticing Col. Hecht's name and title on the register, decided that he needed a title himself. So he wrote after his name what he thought was a proper abbreviation for 'general merchandise.' It worked beautifully. During his stay at the hotel he was respectfully addressed as 'Gen. Salz.'—San Francisco Chronicle.

Statue of Queen Alexandra.

The first statue of Queen Alexandra on English soil will be erected in the grounds of the London Hospital, to commemorate the completion of the rebuilding operations, which have cost £45,000. The sculptor will be George Wade, and the statue, which will be of bronze, will be of heroic size. It will cost £1,500, and of this sum £1,300 has been subscribed already by the committee, the staff, and a few personal friends.

It Often Happens.

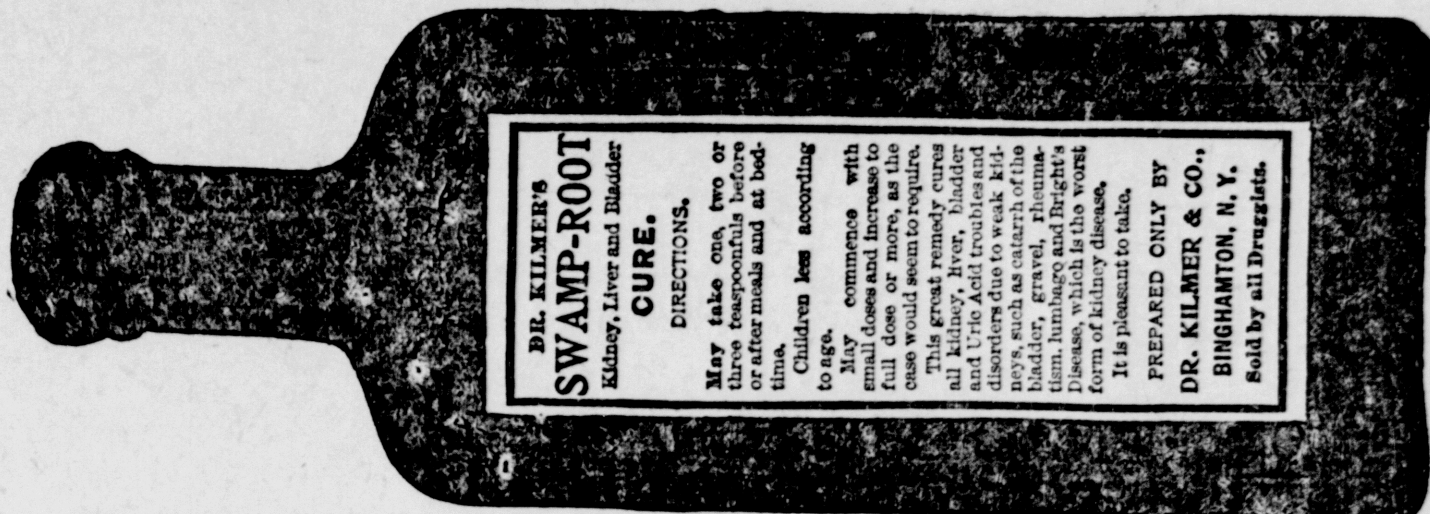

"I understand you played a solo at the musical last night?"

"No; merely an accompaniment."

"Why, nobody sang."

"True. But everybody talked."

Swift & Company

Year 1905 Sales.

The total distributive sales for 1905 exceeded $200,000,000.

This total is realized from the sale of fresh meats (beef, mutton and pork), provisions, produce (poultry, butter and eggs), soaps, glues, oils, bones, fertilizers, feathers, casings, hides, wools, pelts and other by-products derived from cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.

Margin of Profit.

The industry is operated on a margin of less than 2 cents to each dollar of sales. Swift & Co. do not sell at retail. Their entire output is sold at wholesale to many thousands of dealers in various parts of the world. There are hundreds of local slaughterers throughout the United States, who buy their live stock in competition with the packer doing an interstate and international business. Likewise the packer must sell in competition with the local slaughterers. There are no secret processes in the industry, no complicated and expensive factories, and as live stock can be purchased in almost every hamlet and city, and the preparation of meats is simple in the extreme, local slaughtering will long remain a factor in the production of fresh meats and provisions.

Economic Advantages.

The large packing houses will, however, always have these advantages: Locations at the chief live stock centers, with the opportunity to buy the best live stock; manufacturing in large quantities, at the minimum of expense; utilization of all waste material; refrigeration; mechanical appliances; highly efficient business management. These advantages are reflected in the quality of the packer's output, a quality that has reached its highest development in the products bearing the name and brand of "Swift."

Purchasing Live Stock.

The principal live stock centers are Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul and Fort Worth.

The same methods of purchasing cattle, sheep and hogs prevail at all cities. At Chicago, which is the largest market, there are about two hundred and fifty buyers, representing packers, local slaughterers in various cities and exporters. Of this number, less than a score are employed by Swift & Company.

The farmer ships his live stock to Chicago, consigns them to a commission firm at the Union Stock Yards, who sees that they are unloaded and put in pens. Then the buyers inspect them, make their offers to the commission dealer, who accepts or rejects as his judgment dictates. All buying must be finished at 3 o'clock each day, and the buyer must pay spot cash. If the commission man has no satisfactory offers, he can hold his stock over to the next day. He gets his commission from the farmer, and naturally strives to get the highest possible price for his client.

Wholesale Distributing Houses.

A wholesale distributing house is a giant refrigerator, but instead of shelves there are trolley rails, from which are suspended hooks to hang the carcasses. Some of the houses cost as much as a hundred thousand dollars to build and equip. As a rule they are of pressed brick, the insides being lined—floor, walls and ceiling—with highly polished hardwood. The floors are covered daily with fresh sawdust, and all are kept spotlessly clean. There are over three hundred of these wholesale houses in various cities of the United States, and the public is always welcome to visit them.

Packing Plants.

All the Swift & Company plants are located at the great live stock markets, in the heart of the great agricultural sections, where can be purchased the finest grades of cattle, sheep and hogs. We have seven packing plants, employing at each from two to eight thousand persons. The following gives the locations and sizes of the different plants:

Packing Plants.

The total number of persons employed in all the Swift packing plants and branch houses aggregate over 26,000 persons. Conditions for employees in the various manufacturing and operating departments is continually improving with the construction of new buildings and the installation of new and up-to-date equipment.

Sanitation and Hygiene.

The housewife makes no greater effort to keep her kitchen clean than we do to keep in sanitary and hygienic condition our abattoirs. They are thoroughly scrubbed at the close of each day's operations, and automatic appliances are used wherever possible in order to eliminate the personal handling of meats. Rigid rules governing these points are strictly enforced; laxity means dismissal.

Visitors Always Welcome.

No other industry in the world gives such a cordial welcome to visitors as Swift & Co. We keep open house the year around, and maintain a corps of specially trained guides, with special elevators and rest rooms. In one year we have entertained over a quarter of a million of men and women; in one day—Grand Army Day, 1901—we entertained 23,000. Among our visitors have been ambassadors from foreign governments, princes, noblemen and distinguished citizens from all lands and eminent folks from every state in the Union. We wish to familiarize the public with our methods, and the best way to do that is to let the public see for itself. We have no secret processes or methods in any department.

A TRIBUTE TO OUR FELLOW TOWNSMAN.

Editor Ben F. White, of the Holdenville Times, has an extended editorial in which, with the approach of statehood, he emphasizes the importance of the people choosing good men for the offices of the new state. Mr. White lays especial stress upon the qualification of a good U. S. Senator. After exhorting the people to beware of candidates who have been identified with corporate interests, he pays the following tribute to our fellow townsman, Judge Henry M. Furman:

"There is a man who is understood to be a candidate for the office of United States senator from the new and 'imperial' state of Oklahoma, against whom not a breath of suspicion as to where his sympathies lie has ever been suggested. He is one of the people; he is a great, big-hearted democrat, whom to know is to love. He is a man thoroughly in earnest in his endeavor to uplift mankind, and whose every heartbeat is in sympathy with mankind. He is thoroughly capable, a fluent and convincing orator, a successful lawyer, a sturdy, honest man and would make the new state an ideal senator. As one of the first senators to represent this new state in the national congress the Times nominates the Honorable Henry M. Furman of Ada."

COTTON CROOKEDNESS.

Some gamblers made the cotton unginned the middle of January 1,000,000 bales. The government had information showing it to be only one-fourth that amount. To give out such information would be to publish the truth and, incidentally, to raise or to keep up the price. It should have been given out as the official estimate.

Director North claims that the purpose of the reports is to serve the cotton raisers, yet he must see that the publication of the estimate of unginned cotton, which he refused to give out, raised the price of cotton 19 points in six minutes. Just how a failure to give out this information would help anybody but the bears, it remains for Director North or Secretary Wilson to explain.—Dallas News.

AUCTION SALE

Of Town Lots at Tupelo, Indian Territory.

On February 8, there will be an auction sale of town lots, both business and residence, at Tupelo, I. T., when splendid opportunities for investment and speculation will be offered. The terms of sale will be one-half cash and balance in 3 and 6 months. Round trip tickets will be sold at all points on the M. The New Marshal's Regime.

By the last of this week A. K. Porter recently appointed U. S. marshal for this district, will likely assume his official duties and select his deputies. His appointment is expected to be confirmed by the Senate Tuesday.

In all there are fifty-three deputies to be named in this district. Those who have talked with Mr. Porter say he is not disposed to make any sweeping changes in the personnel of the force. In case local fights over deputyships should arise, and the filing of charges and mud-slinging began, it is reported that Mr. Porter will simply import old frontier friends—and good official timber withal—from far-off Wyoming. But this he will not do, it is said, unless petty factional fights force it.

It is to be hoped that the Southern District will be spared the spectacle of further political dirt-tossing, such as characterized the recent contests for appointments, at Washington, and that Mr. Porter can consistently select capable subordinates from home material.

Commercial Club Meeting.

There were a goodly number of members present Monday night at the adjourned meeting of the Commercial Club.

Upon motion a committee on membership was appointed, consisting of Dick Simpson, John Beard and the club secretary. It was made their duty to thoroughly canvass the town with membership lists. When a citizen signs the list he thereby becomes a member, entitled to all rights and privileges of the body and subject to pay initiation fee and regular dues.

W. B. Jones and Otis B. Weaver were appointed a committee to have installed in front of the hall an electric light sign to give illuminated notice of meeting nights. The proposition to send a delegate to Washington met with no encouragement.

President Chambliss gave notice that it was time to hold the annual election of officers. By motion, Monday night, Feb. 12, was set as the time for the election, and it was agreed that cigars should be provided for the occasion.

Dr. Ligon and John Beard lead an able discussion of the value of advertising the town.

Bro. Colbert Calls.

Rev. H. Colbert of Franks, an old subscriber, gave the News a pleasant call Tuesday. The Colberts are one of the oldest and most influential families among the Chickasaws and have ever been foremost in the tribe's affairs.

Bro. Colbert is pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church, near Franks. He says he has twelve members, all women. But the Chickasaw men and some white people attend the services, which are conducted entirely in Chickasaw language.

Council Meeting.

The city council convened Monday night in regular semi-monthly session. The monthly reports of officers were submitted and approved and the usual batch of bills were passed on and warrants ordered to be issued in payment thereof.

C. W. Graves was employed as sexton of the cemetery and authorized to purchase necessary tools and material.

The body adjourned to meet again the first of next week to take up some important matters pending.

FRANCIS DEMOCRATS TAKE THE INITIATIVE

The News is indebted to Mr. J. O. McMinn, editor of the Francis Bulletin, for the following notes concerning an important recent meeting of the Francis democratic club, at which the following well-known gentlemen from Ada made addresses:

H. M. Furman, J. F. McKeel, T. D. McKeown, J. W. Bolen and J. E. Grigsby.

This patriotic, progressive club took the initiative in territorial democracy by the adoption of this admirable resolution.

"Resolved, That all candidates for office from constable to senator who desire the support of this club must be submissive to the wish and will of the people as expressed through the primary elections and not through conventions."

The action was taken because of the fact that conventions are no longer expressive of the wishes of the people, the true sovereigns of the land, but are packed and run by politicians and those serving special interests.

Robt Wimbish, W. L. Nettles and W. A. Chitwood went to Wewoka last night and organized a K. of P. lodge of 40 members. They made a flying trip, returning via the morning M. K. & T.

THE BILL BOBBED UP ONLY TO DISAPPEAR

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Senate reached the statehood bill Monday morning while considering the calendar, but on objection by Mr. Lodge its reading was not permitted. Mr. Lodge is a friend to the bill, so that his objection signifies nothing more than that the Senate is not yet ready to fix a time for its consideration. The subsidy bill is unfinished business. There is no likelihood of its being brought to a vote for several weeks, and its advocates will probably give way to the statehood bill when Mr. Beveridge can get the Senate in a humor to accede to his importunities. When this will be not even Mr. Beveridge knows, though he has expressed the hope that within ten days he will be able to have a time fixed for its consideration.

The most significant statement when the bill was reached, was that of Mr. Foraker, who took occasion to say that he had no intention of filibustering on the measure. He declared that he was ready to vote on it at any time. This is taken to mean that Mr. Foraker is sure that a majority of the Senate are opposed to the measure as it came from the House. He had frequently asserted as much, and it is now admitted by a number of the bill's supporters that the effort to inflict statehood on Arizona will not be sanctioned by the Senate.

The general opinion is that rather late in the session the bill will be sent back to the House short of the provision respecting New Mexico and Arizona, and that the House will concur in the amendment. The President, it is said on good authority, has fortified himself for defeat on this part of the White House program.

MAY ASK PRESIDENT TO INTERVENE IN COAL STRIKE

New York, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt will doubtless be called upon in a few days to use his influence in averting a general strike of anthracite and bituminous coal miners. Opinions of leaders at the mines and operators in this city indicate that without the interposition of some potent influence outside of the conflicting interests a strike of greater proportions than has ever before been known in this country is inevitable. Nothing that occurred in the mining districts today gave promise of a peaceful outcome of the dispute.

The executive boards of the three anthracite districts adjourned in Indianapolis without making any headway toward a basis of settlement, and are to meet again on Friday in Wilkesbarre with John Mitchell.

MR. LAWSON'S INSURANCE PROGRAM NOT ANNOUNCED

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 6.—After a continuous conference of nine hours Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, author of "Frenzied Finance," was coaxed out of Parlor N in the Palmer House last night long enough to confess that the mission which brought him to Chicago had failed to develop sufficiently for the general public to be taken into his confidence. In another twenty-four hours he said he might be in a position to make an announcement of interest.

This will depend greatly however, on the result of a conference which he will have with Gov. Cummins of Iowa at Des Moines Wednesday. Mr. Lawson left for Iowa at 10:30 o'clock last night.

Mr. Lawson admitted that yesterday's long conference concerned insurance problems, but refused to give even an inkling of the details of the deal which he is evolving.

THE CASTELLANES AT LAST IN THE DIVORCE COURT

Paris, Feb. 6.—Countess Boni de Castellane (formerly Anna Gould) entered a plea for divorce yesterday. Representatives of the Count and Countess appeared before a judge, who, according to the French law, endeavored to arrange a conciliation before allowing a definite suit to proceed. It is said that the Judge was not successful and the suit will proceed, but owing to the secrecy in divorce proceedings here it is difficult to confirm this report.

Sensational reports have been circulated with reference to the Count's conduct and the name of a prominent society leader of Paris, a woman of very high standing, has been mentioned in connection with the affair, but the greatest reticence has been maintained by all the parties concerned relative to the progress of the negotiations looking to a conciliation and even this morning a favorable result was expected, especially as the Countess returned to her residence. It now appears that the efforts of those interested in bringing about a settlement of the differences between the Countess and the Count were unavailing.

GOT HALF OF MINISTER'S FEE

Transaction Added Little to the Cabman's Bank Account.

John, had the name of being the jolliest man in town. But tonight, which was apparently the worst night in the year, even John wore a long face, and as he swung his cab door open for the minister to enter, John's doleful expression was so noticeable that the minister inquired if he were thinking about the work of cleaning off the mud in the morning.

"No, it is not the work that I'm thinking of. If I could make as much as you this evening, I wouldn't mind it a bit."

"Well," replied the minister. "I am to marry a couple this evening and I'll give you half of my fee for driving me out and back."

"It is a deal," replied John.

After an hour of dreary driving through cold and rain John drew up in front of a small house in which the service was to take place. It was two long hours of cold waiting before the minister re-entered the cab, and the home drive was made. With a spirit of expectancy John once more swung open the cab door in front of the minister's house. The minister stepped out, and as he entered his own door he turned and said:

"Five hundred thanks, John," leaving the bewildered cabman to figure out what his exact fee had been.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Impossible to Trace Clearly the Words "Tart" and "Pie."

Usage alone must decide the issue between "pie" and "tart," which has returned to us with the gooseberries, says the London Chronicle. Philology, at any rate, draws no clear distinction. It only traces back "tart" to the Indian "tortus," twisted—the pastry being the twisted part, of course, while it is very doubtful about "pie." On the whole, Skeat's conjecture that this expresses the miscellaneous nature of the contents is persuasive. All the "pies" seem to go back to the original one, the magpie—in Latin, "pica"—from whose black and white aspect comes "pied" and "piebald." The old ordinal or service book was called "pica" or "pie" because of the appearance of the black letter type on a white page, and the edible pie, having equally mixed contents, may have been christened after this by medieval humor. Printers' language retains both "pica" for a kind of type and "pi" for type all jumbled up.

"Demagogue" Means Leader.

"Demagogue," which means merely a leader of the people, seems doomed to attract an evil sense to itself. In English, Dryden and Swift used it in a good or neutral sense, the latter applying it to Demosthenes and Cicero, and John Richard Green wrote enthusiastically of Pym as "the grandest of demagogues." But the manner in which it was used in the "Elkon Basilike," attributed to Charles I, led Milton to speak of it as "a goblin word," and that is how it is invariably used to-day. In its native Greek its history was similar. It could be applied to statesmen such as Pericles, but, from being used by Greek Tories contemptuously to characterize such popular leaders as the leather seller Cleon, it could eventually be defined by Aristotle as "flatterer of the democracy."

Ownership of Extracted Teeth.

It is well known that a corpse is not property, but what about an extracted tooth? So far as we know the point has not arisen in the courts of this country. At Gera, in Germany, however, it has just been decided that the tooth still belongs to the man after it has left his jaw. The dentist contended that a tooth evicted from occupancy with the full consent of its landlord became ownerless and derelict and as the particular tooth in question was curiously shaped he proposed to keep it. But the patient avished to have it. And the patient won.

Living on Next to Nothing.

What a thrifty person can do on a miserably small income was shown by a one-time curate of Thulkeid, in Cumberland, Eng. Alexander Naughtley, whose entire income was £8 15s a year. Mr. Naughtley lived absolutely alone, slept on a bed of straw, and cooked his own scanty food; but he never failed to present a respectable appearance to the world, while not a word of complaint over passed his lips.—London Answers.

Keeping Strength at Maximum.

"First, last and all the time, if you wish to avoid catching cold," says a writer in a local medical journal, "keep your strength at the maximum. Whenever the vitality is lowered by overwork, poor food, worry or by any other cause, our power of resistance is impaired and an opening is made for the thousand and one agencies of disease which are continually seeking to break in."

Mirror Saved Children.

An almost miraculous escape from death was that of two little children in a bungalow in Bengal. A tiger rushed out of the jungle and broke in after the children. As he rushed at them he came across a looking glass, and there he saw what he took to be another tiger rushing at him. Furiously he attacked his reflection, smashing the glass into ten thousand pieces. The noise and excitement so frightened him that he fled into the jungle, leaving the children unharmed.

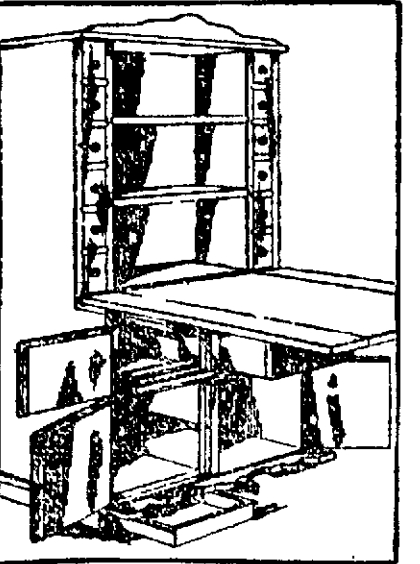

SHOWING THE WORLD'S PROGRESS

Wonders of Science.

If we no longer live in an age when Lord Beaconsfield's famous phrase, "Young men prattle protoplasm," is only because of the inexhaustible resources of science, which have distracted our attention with later discoveries. Nowadays the public mind is prepared for anything and therefore the announcement that a practical process has been discovered for extracting nitrogen from the atmosphere, and for making it available to agriculture as the basis of a chemical manure, will probably only create a mild sensation. The announcement, if it be substantiated, is of the utmost consequence, however. It solves a problem which has long disquieted both agriculturists and scientists. The fertility of the soil is by no means inexhaustible, and the supply of fertilizing material from the Chilean nitrate fields is also confined to easily calculable dimensions. "Wherewith then shall the earth be sated?" is the question that presents itself, and it is a question which certain Norwegian experimentalists claim to have solved.

Combination Cabinet.

It is an absolute necessity to have a cupboard and refrigerator in every household; but an added advantage is to have both in combination with a cabinet. The housewife will recognize the advantage of having a cabinet in close proximity to the refrigerator, as many articles of food can be placed in it and still be near enough to the ice to be kept cool. The piece of furniture shown here, devised by a Canadian, is made in three parts constructed in combination and arranged as an upright stand. The latter is divided into two lower sections—the refrigerator and cabinet and the upper section, or cupboard. The refrigerator is again divided into a cooling box and an ice chest, both being closed by a door. The cooling box has a number of perforated shelves for supporting articles. Extending the entire height of the cupboard at each side is a tier of drawers, the remainder being divided into shelves. The door consists of three sections hinged together, the three opening downward and forming the top of a table. When it is desired to arrange the furniture as a table or workboard a brace extending from the shelf is drawn out and the door of the cupboard laid down and allowed to rest on the brace, which supports the outer end and also prevents the door from sagging. By arranging the several parts in combination the inventor has provided several conveniences in a very compact form, the combination being especially useful in small places where room is at a premium.

Turbine-Driven Locomotive.

So successful has been the turbine or stationary and marine engines that it is not strange that efforts should be made to use it in connection with locomotives. It has been proposed to mount a steam boiler and turbine on a locomotive, and use the power to drive a dynamo which would supply current to the motors similar to those of an ordinary electric locomotive. Recently, however, Prof. Stumpf, of the Royal Technical School at Charlottenburg, Germany, has invented a locomotive where the turbines are directly connected with the axles.

There are three driving axles, and the plan involves using the steam in successive stages in the turbines, which are placed outside of each driving wheel. The steam is introduced into the first turbine on one side through a pipe direct from the boiler, and then passes successively through the second and third turbines on the same side. It then goes to a set of turbine on the other side of the locomotive, from the last of which the exhausted steam passes into the stack through the exhaust blast nozzle. The outcome of the new invention will be awaited with interest, not only on account of the extension of use of the turbine, but also for the fact that the modern steam locomotive is an uneconomic piece of machinery, requiring given quantity of power.—Montreal Herald.

Entering a Demurrer.

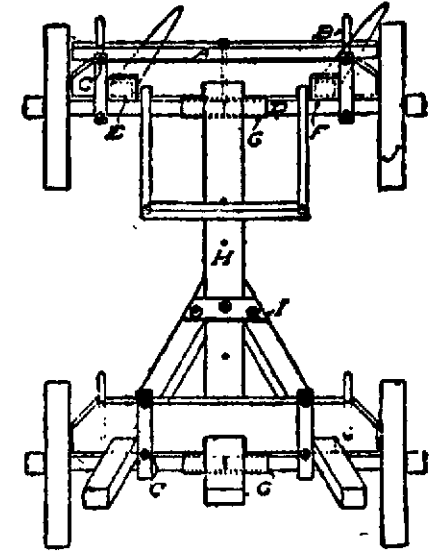

"Obviously," said the lecturer. "what we need is a more elastic currency, for the reason—"

"Not me," interrupted the shabby man in the front row. "What I need is a more adhesive currency." Whereat there was loud applause. It appeared there were others.

TRUCK HANDY FOR FARM WORK.

Design Shown Can Be Constructed Very Cheaply.

Many uses can be found for a low wheeled, broad tired truck that can be driven over soft ground. If stones are to be hauled the lifting will be made easier, and in spraying potatoes, a pump can be rigged on the platform to distribute the mixture over half a dozen rows at a time. The truck shown in the illustration can be constructed at very little expense, except for bolts. The butt of a large elm or maple can be sawed off to make the four wheels. An oak tree, if it is available, will furnish the timber for the axles and frame.

Material for Foundation.

I wish to build a stone foundation under house 30 feet by 40 feet. The house has a heavy frame of ten-inch pine timber. There is a large cellar under it which, however, does not extend to the outside wall. What would the stone foundation cost?

The amount of material for a stone wall for cellar under a house 30 feet by 40 feet, 7 feet high and 1 foot and a half thick, would be as follows: Stone, 14 3/4 cords; sand, 15 yards; lime, 75 bushels. If cement mortar is used it would take 30 barrels cement. To raise house use jack screws, raising the house to height required, care being taken to raise it evenly all around so as not to crack the plaster. Block up with blocks at each corner. Use a needle beam, having same passing through under sills and ends resting on blocks outside of house. Keep this beam about two feet back from corner of house so as to allow the corner to be built up to sills. When walls are done remove beam and fill up the space where the beam was. To block up center of sills use a beam across under sill, one end resting on a post in cellar and the other end on blocks outside of house. This will give you a clear space for excavating building walls.

Building Without Frames for Molding.

I am thinking of building a house, and I wish to do as much of the work as possible myself. I have good sand and gravel to use for concrete, but I find the machines for molding the blocks are expensive. Would it pay to try and make a frame for molding or could a hollow wall be built with out molding into blocks?

If you do not care to buy or rent a machine for making the hollow concrete blocks, would advise you building a hollow concrete wall, which is done the same as a solid wall, except having a beveled plank set in center of wall and when walls are built to top of planks these can be lifted out leaving a space. Or take two 7-8 inch boards with long wedges between them set in position and when ready to lift, loosen wedges and the boards will come out easily. A good way to tie the wall together is by using hoop iron bent up at each end and bedded in the concrete. For a dwelling house where the walls are strapped, lathed and plastered. A solid concrete wall is considered to be a good dry and warm wall. The air space between the lath and wall prevents the dampness from striking through.

The Kiln.

Would you inform me as to the best way to build a small tar kiln for taking tar from pine trees?

A kiln is not always necessary for obtaining the tar from pine, though there should be some covering. In the forests of North Carolina the wood is piled in conical heaps, covered with earth and then fired, the tar being collected at the bottom of the pile. A kiln of brick or stone could be built the size required, the essential part being the arrangement at the bottom for receiving the tar.

Antiquity of Wheat.

Of the cereals it will be agreed that wheat occupies a pre-eminent position, and no matter in what country it is grown, it is held in the highest esteem, being even in some cases looked upon with something approaching reverence. Its origin dates back from time immemorial, for reference is made to its being cultivated in China at so remote a period as 3,000 B. C., being likewise considered a very important crop in ancient Egypt and Palestine, just as it is in all the temperate regions of Europe, Asia and Africa. It is also recorded that common wheat, contained in vessels which were so thoroughly sealed as even to retain both the form and color of the grain was also discovered in the sepulchres of the Egyptian kings at the time when the French army entered Egypt, these grains being closely examined by naturalists and scientists accompanying the army.

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from a disinterested motive. Dr. Pierce's medicine, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their makers' say-so or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. F. H. Ellingwood, M. D., of Boston Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John K. D. D. late of Cincinnati, Ohio; Dr. Grover Cox, of New York; Dr. Bartholomew of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others equally eminent.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostration, anteversion and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable and weakening discharges, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind it is not a patent nor even a secret medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated physician of large experience in the cure of women's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them just what the "Favorite Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for women's special maladies and sold through druggists is there so much that the maker is not afraid to deal thus frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to preserve health and beauty is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. 21 one-cent stamps to cover mailing only; in cloth binding 31 stamps. Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

Storekeepers report that the extra quantity, together with the superior quality of Defiance Starch makes it next to impossible to sell any other brand.

Korea affords good opportunities for shooting both large and small game, and has a delightful climate at all seasons of the year. The new American line of steamers, Japan to Korea, is already available.

"We Have Many Similar."

The following is an extract from a letter received from Mr. H. H. Meyers of Stuttgart, Ark.: "You would greatly oblige me if you would introduce Hunt's Lighting Oil at Milledgeville, Ill., as I have many friends and relatives there, in whom I am much concerned, and I understand the Oil is not kept there. I can recommend it as the best medicine I ever had in my house. It cured me of a bad case of the bloody flux in less than one-half an hour, and it cured my granddaughter of a bad case of cholera morbus in a very short time."

It isn't what you know, but what you can make others believe you know that counts.

Fundreds of dealers say the extra quantity and superior quality of Defiance Starch is fast taking place of all other brands. Others say they cannot sell any other starch.

As we journey through this vale of tears we find that many people express their gratitude with cold storage thanks.

A DESPAIRING WOMAN.

Weak, Nervous and Wretched From Wasting Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Henry A. Reamer, Main and Garst Sts., South Bend, Ind., says:

"When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was so weak I could hardly drag myself across the room. I was wretched and nervous, and had backache, bearing-down pain, headache, dizziness and weak eyes. Dropsy set in and bloating of the chest choked me and threatened the heart. I had little hope, but to my untold surprise Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief and saved my life. I shall never forget it."

GEN. GRANT'S SHREWD SCHEME.

Long Time Enemies Reconciled by Humor of Situation.

The officers on Governor's Island are telling an excellent story on Gen. Grant. It seems that two soldiers had been in the habit of getting into a scrap every day and were constantly up before their colonel for discipline. Every sort of mild punishment was tried without avail till at last the commander of the department of the east was appealed to. After taking a horizontal view of it the general sent for the sergeant major and said: "Just see that those two men, Crowley and Hitchins, clean all the barrack windows, Crowley to do the outside while Hitchins attends to the inside, and, recollect, neither man is to leave any window till the other has finished." The scheme was highly successful. The enemies scowled thunderously, even murderously, at each other for five windows, but flesh and blood could hold out no longer. At the sixth they burst out laughing and have been the best of friends ever since.

It must be an awful lot of fun to be so rich you can grumble about how poor you are.

Now, if the milliners would only convince the women that turkey feathers were the proper thing for trimming hats—But, pshaw! If they did the price of turkey feathers would be as high as the wise turkey roosts.

If you don't get the biggest and best it's your own fault. Defiance Starch is for sale everywhere and there is positively nothing to equal it in quality or quantity.

Lights Out.

"So that young man's gone at last," said the girl's mother. "You and he have been occupying the parlor pretty regularly here of late, and I'd like to know what his intentions are. Do you know?"

"Well," was the dear girl's ambiguous reply, "he keeps me a good deal in the dark."—Philadelphia Press.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

What appears to be a slight nervous attack may be the forerunner of a severe disorder. No nervous sufferer should neglect the warning symptoms, but should see that the starved nerves are nourished before the injury to the delicate organism has gone to an extent that renders a cure a difficult matter. The nervous system is nourished through the blood, the same as every other part of the body, and the best nerve tonic and food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The experience of Mr. Harry Bemis, of Truthville, Washington county, N. Y., substantiates this.

"I had been feeling badly for a long time," said Mr. Bemis, "and in the early part of September, 1902, I was compelled to quit work on account of my ill health. My trouble was at first extreme nervousness, then my sight became affected and I consulted an oculist who said I was suffering from paralysis. He treated me for some time, but I got no benefit. I tried another doctor and he failed to obtain any relief. My nervousness increased. Slight noises would almost make me wild. My mouth was drawn so I could scarcely eat and one eye was affected so I could hardly see. I had very little use of my limbs, in fact I was almost a complete wreck. I am all right now and am at work. That is because I followed my wife's advice and took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She had used the same remedy herself with the most gratifying results and she persuaded me to try them when it appeared that the doctors were unable to help me. They acted very surely in my case; my face came back into shape and in time I was entirely well."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or by mail by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet on Nervous Disorders sent free on request.

ART NOT BOUGHT BY THE TON.

Involving Contract That MacMonnies Came Near Making.

Of late years Frederick MacMonnies, the sculptor, has had so many commissions to do groups of sculpture that he has made it a rule never to enter a competition with other artists for an order, says the World's Work. In this connection a story is told of an American city that asked him to enter a design for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. He declined to compete. The commission was tendered him outright. He submitted sketches of his idea for the groups. The committee in charge of the monument wrote him, asking:

"How many tons of granite do you intend to use in the base?"

His reply was: "If you are in the business of buying granite, you may use as much as you want, one ton or 100,000 tons. I am an artist and I have never yet heard of art being bought by the pound."

The question was dropped until the contract for the commission was drawn. When Mr. MacMonnies received it, he discovered in it a clause providing that in case the bronzes were ever thrown down from their base for any cause whatever, and any person or property should be injured, he and his heirs forever should be liable for the damage sustained. He returned the contract without comment, unsigned. When the committee wrote him asking the reason, his brief reply was: "Your lawyers are too sharp."

WANTED TO MAKE HEAVY BET.

Jack McAuliffe Went High in the Animal Scale.

"When Val-d'Or won the Prix Monarque at Maisons-Laffitte, near Paris, not long ago," said Francis Breckenridge Douglas, a breeder of thoroughbreds at Lexington, Ky., "I heard the most remarkable wages ever offered on a horse. I happened to be near Representative Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, and his party of Americans. The French bookmakers have borrowed English slang betting terms, but they have changed the values. A 'pony' is 500 francs, and a 'monkey' is 12,500 francs.

"In the hearing of our party William K. Vanderbilt bet a 'monkey' on Val-d'Or, and William Duke, his trainer, laid a 'pony' on the same horse. Mr. Sullivan's friend, Jack McAuliffe, the former lightweight pugilist champion of the world, liked another horse. Also he heard the 'pony' and 'monkey' bets. With his cigar tucked up in the left corner of his mouth, Jack strode up to the French bookie, pointed at the card and commanded:

"Here! I'll bet you an elephant on my horse, Finnasaur!"

"Jerry" Was Registered.

When the late Col. Rowell was chairman of the board of registrars of voters in Somerville the applicant for registration was given the full test required by law, and frequently the examinations of a would-be voter was extremely amusing, says a writer in the Boston Herald.

On one occasion "Jerry" Shea, a pedler, appeared before the board. He was a shrewd chap, and possessed a keen sense of humor. After the usual preliminary questions, "Jerry" was invited to put his hand into the box containing a number of cards bearing extracts from the state constitution and draw forth one and read it to the colonel.

It happened that the card he drew had reference to the salary of the Governor. "Jerry" read it slowly, and apparently painfully. When he had finished the reading the colonel glanced at him sharply and said: "What is salary?"

Jerry smiled and said, most blandly: "Why, colonel, I have sold all that I had to-day for 8 cents a bunch." He was registered.

Functions of Taste Nerves.

A wine expert was tasting wines. In tasting sweet wines he lowered his head upon his breast. In tasting dry or sour ones he threw his head back.

"Why do you do that?" said a spectator.

"I don't know. Habit, I guess," the expert replied.

"You do it," the spectator explained, "because the front of your tongue can only taste sweet things and the back of it only sour things and the movement of your head is for the purpose of throwing the wines upon the right part of your tongue. The taste nerves have different functions, some handling sweets, others sour, others bitters and so on, just as the muscles have different functions, some working the leg and some the arm."

"Well, well," said the expert. "You surprise me. At the same time I'm sure you are right. Everybody, come to think of it, holds sweet things on the forepart of the tongue to get their flavor and sour things on the hind part."

Where Dreams Are Sold.

At the silken sign of the Poppy. At a shop that is never old. Where the twilight silence lingers. It is there that dreams are sold.

There's the scent of love's lost roses. There's the grim toll of childhood's laugh. There's the ring of empty glasses. For the white lips never quaff.

To the crimson sign of the Poppy. We shall come when the daylight dies. When the curfew music quivers. North the gray of evening skies.

Just beyond the gates of sunset. Where the grim toll of death we pay. We shall find the shop of dream-wares. Where the poppies hang away.

So, we long for the dusk of twilight. When with wealth or no earthly gold. We shall come where sleep-flowers cluster. To the shops where dreams are sold.

CONFERRED TITLE ON HIMSELF.

New San Francisco Merchant Acquired Military Honor.

"The martial spirit that pervades Europe makes the average civilian very much of a nonentity as he jays about the gay capitals across the water," remarked Henry Stern. "Which leads up to the advice that, if you want to attract attention when you go to Europe, you want to have a military title attached to your name. The fact was forcibly impressed on my mind while I was on a European tour some time back. The clerk at the Grand Hotel in Paris remarked to me that two distinguished officers from my city had been spending some time at the hotel a little while before I was curious to see who they were, so we looked back over the register for their names. We found them without much trouble. The first to greet my gaze was written down in this fashion:

"Col. M. H. Hecht, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A."

"Further down on the page," interrupted the clerk, "you will notice the name of Gen. Salz."

"There, in a bold hand, was inscribed 'Jacob Salz, Gen. Mer., San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A.'"

"What actually happened was this as I subsequently learned. Salz, who is well known as the owner of a big tannery at Bendia, arrived at the hotel, and, noticing Col. Hecht's name and title on the register, decided that he needed a title himself. So he wrote after his name what he thought was a proper abbreviation for 'general merchandise.' It worked beautifully. During his stay at the hotel he was respectfully addressed as 'Gen. Salz.'"—San Francisco Chronicle.

Statue of Queen Alexandra.

The first statue of Queen Alexandra on English soil will be erected in the grounds of the London Hospital, to commemorate the completion of the rebuilding operations, which have cost £45,000. The sculptor will be George Wade, and the statue, which will be of bronze, will be of heroic size. It will cost £1,500, and of this sum £1,300 has been subscribed already by the committee, the staff, and a few personal friends.

It Often Happens.

"I understand you played a solo at the musical last night?"

"No, merely an accompaniment."

"Why, nobody sang?"

"True. But everybody talked."

Year 1905 Sales.

The total distributive sales for 1905 exceeded

$200,000,000.

This total is realized from the sale of fresh meats (beef, mutton and pork), provisions, produce (poultry, butter and eggs), soaps, glues, oils, bones, fertilizers, feathers, casings, hides, wools, pelts and other by-products derived from cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.

Margin of Profit.

The industry is operated on a margin of less than 2 cents to each dollar of sales. Swift & Co. do not sell at retail. Their entire output is sold at wholesale to many thousands of dealers in various parts of the world. There are hundreds of local slaughterers throughout the United States, who buy their live stock in competition with the packer doing an interstate and international business. Likewise the packer must sell in competition with the local slaughterers. There are no secret processes in the industry, no complicated and expensive factories, and as live stock can be purchased in almost every hamlet and city, and the preparation of meats is simple in the extreme, local slaughtering will long remain a factor in the production of fresh meats and provisions.

Economic Advantages.

The large packing houses will, however, always have these advantages: Locations at the chief live stock centers, with the opportunity to buy the best live stock; manufacturing in large quantities, at the minimum of expense; utilization of all waste material; refrigeration; mechanical appliances; highly efficient business management. These advantages are reflected in the quality of the packer's output, a quality that has reached its highest development in the products bearing the name and brand of "Swift."

Purchasing Live Stock.

The principal live stock centers are Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St.

The total number of persons employed in all the Swift packing plants and branch houses aggregate over 26,000 persons. Conditions for employees in the various manufacturing and operating departments is continually improving with the construction of new buildings and the installation of new and up-to-date equipment.

Sanitation and Hygiene.

The housewife makes no greater effort to keep her kitchen clean than we do to keep in sanitary and hygienic condition our abattoirs. They are thoroughly scrubbed at the close of each day's operations, and automatic appliances are used wherever possible in order to eliminate the personal handling of meats. Rigid rules governing these points are strictly enforced; laxity means dismissal.

Visitors Always Welcome.

No other industry in the world gives such a cordial welcome to visitors as Swift & Co. We keep open house the year around, and maintain a corps of specially trained guides, with special elevators and rest rooms. In one year we have entertained over a quarter of a million of men and women; in one day—Grand Army Day, 1901—we entertained 23,000. Among our visitors have been ambassadors from foreign governments, princes, noblemen and distinguished citizens from all lands and eminent folks from every state in the Union. We wish to familiarize the public with our methods, and the best way to do that is to let the public see for itself. We have no secret processes or methods in any department.

Packing Plants.

All the Swift & Company plants are located at the great live stock markets, in the heart of the great agricultural sections, where can be purchased the finest grades of cattle, sheep and hogs. We have seven packing plants, employing at each from two to eight thousand persons. The following gives the locations and sizes of the different plants:

A TRIBUTE TO OUR FELLOW TOWNSMAN.

Editor Ben F. White, of the Holdenville Times, has an extended editorial in which, with the approach of statehood, he emphasizes the importance of the people choosing good men for the offices of the new state. Mr. White lays especial stress upon the qualification of a good U. S. Senator. After exhorting the people to beware of candidates who have been identified with corporate interests, he pays the following tribute to our fellow townsman, Judge Henry M. Furman:

"There is a man who is understood to be a candidate for the office of United States senator from the new and 'imperial' state of Oklahoma, against whom not a breath of suspicion as to where his sympathies lie has ever been suggested. He is one of the people; he is a great, big-hearted democrat, whom to know is to love. He is a man thoroughly in earnest in his endeavor to uplift mankind, and whose every heartbeat is in sympathy with mankind. He is thoroughly capable, a fluent and convincing orator, a successful lawyer, a sturdy, honest man and would make the new state an ideal senator. As one of the first senators to represent this new state in the national congress the Times nominates the Honorable Henry M. Furman of Ada."

COTTON CROOKEDNESS.

Some gamblers made the cotton unguessed the middle of January 1,000,000 bales. The government had information showing it to be only one-fourth that amount. To give out such information would be to publish the truth and, incidentally, to raise or to keep up the price. It should have been given out as the official estimate.

Director North claims that the purpose of the reports is to serve the cotton raisers, yet he must see that the publication of the estimate of unguessed cotton, which he refused to give out, raised the price of cotton 19 points in six minutes. Just how a failure to give out this information would help anybody but the bears, it remains for Director North or Secretary Wilson to explain.—Dallas News.

The New Marshal's Regime.

By the last of this week A. K. Porter, recently appointed U. S. marshal for this district, will likely assume his official duties and select his deputies. His appointment is expected to be confirmed by the Senate Tuesday.

In all there are fifty-three deputies to be named in this district. Those who have talked with Mr. Porter say he is not disposed to make any sweeping changes in the personnel of the force. In case local fights over deputyships should arise, and the filing of charges and mud-slinging began, it is reported that Mr. Porter will simply import old frontier friends—and good official timber withal—from far-off Wyoming. But this he will not do, it is said, unless petty factional fights force it.

It is to be hoped that the Southern District will be spared the spectacle of further political dirt-tossing, such as characterized the recent contests for appointments, at Washington, and that Mr. Porter can consistently select capable subordinates from home material.

Commercial Club Meeting.

There were a goodly number of members present Monday night at the adjourned meeting of the Commercial Club.

Upon motion a committee on membership was appointed, consisting of Dick Simpson, John Beard and the club secretary. It was made their duty to thoroughly canvass the town with membership lists. When a citizen signs the list he thereby becomes a member, entitled to all rights and privileges of the body and subject to pay initiation fee and regular dues.

W. B. Jones and Otis B. Weaver were appointed a committee to have installed in front of the hall an electric light sign to give illuminated notice of meeting nights. The proposition to send a delegate to Washington met with no encouragement.

President Chambliss gave notice that it was time to hold the annual election of officers. By motion, Monday night, Feb. 12, was set as the time for the election, and it was agreed that cigars should be provided for the occasion.

Dr. Ligon and John Beard lead an able discussion of the value of advertising the town.

Bro. Colbert is pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church, near Franks. He says he has twelve members, all women. But the Chickasaw men and some white people attend the services, which are conducted entirely in Chickasaw language.

Council Meeting.

The city council convened Monday night in regular semi-monthly session. The monthly reports of officers were submitted and approved and the usual batch of bills were passed on and warrant ordered to be issued in payment thereof.

O. W. Graves was employed as sexton of the cemetery and authorized to purchase necessary tools and material.

The body adjourned to meet again the first of next week to take up some important matters pending.

FRANCIS DEMOCRATS TAKE THE INITIATIVE

The News is indebted to Mr. J. O. McMan, editor of the Francis Bulletin, for the following notes concerning an important recent meeting of the Francis democratic club, at which the following well-known gentlemen from Ada made addresses:

H. M. Furman, J. F. McKeel, T. D. McKeown, J. W. Bolen and J. E. Grigsby.

This patriotic, progressive club took the initiative in territorial democracy by the adoption of this admirable resolution.

Resolved, That all candidates for office from constable to senator who desire the support of this club must be submissive to the wish and will of the people as expressed through the primary election and not through conventions."

The action was taken because of the fact that conventions are no longer expressive of the wishes of the people, the true sovereigns of the land, but are packed and run by politicians and those serving special interests.

Robt Wimbish, W. L. Nettles and W. A. Chitwood went to Wewoka last night and organized a K. of P. lodge of 40 members. They made a flying trip, returning via the morning M. K. & T.

THE BILL BOBBED UP ONLY TO DISAPPEAR

Washington, Feb. 6.—The Senate reached the statehood bill Monday morning while considering the calendar, but on objection by Mr. Lodge its reading was not permitted. Mr. Lodge is a friend to the bill, so that his objection signifies nothing more than that the Senate is not yet ready to fix a time for its consideration. The subsidy bill is unfinished business. There is no likelihood of its being brought to a vote for several weeks, and its advocates will probably give way to the statehood bill when Mr. Beveridge can get the Senate in a humor to accede to his importunities. When this will be not even Mr. Beveridge knows, though he has expressed the hope that within ten days he will be able to have a time fixed for its consideration.

The most significant statement when the bill was reached, was that of Mr. Foraker, who took occasion to say that he had no intention of filibustering on the measure. He declared that he was ready to vote on it at any time. This is taken to mean that Mr. Foraker is sure that a majority of the Senate are opposed to the measure as it came from the House. He had frequently asserted as much, and it is now admitted by a number of the bill's supporters that the effort to indict statehood on Arizona will not be sanctioned by the Senate.

The general opinion is that rather late in the session the bill will be sent back to the House short of the provision respecting New Mexico and Arizona, and that the House will concur in the amendment. The President, it is said on good authority, has fortified himself for defeat on this part of the White House program.

MAY ASK PRESIDENT TO INTERVENE IN COAL STRIKE

New York, Feb. 6.—President Roosevelt will doubtless be called upon in a few days to use his influence in averting a general strike of anthracite and bituminous coal miners. Opinions of leaders at the mines and operators in this city indicate that without the interposition of some potent influence outside of the conflicting interests a strike of greater proportions than has ever before been known in this country is inevitable. Nothing that occurred in the mining districts today gave promise of a peaceful outcome of the dispute. The executive boards of the three anthracite districts adjourned in Indianapolis without making any headway toward a basis of settlement, and are to meet again on Friday in Wilkesbarre with John Mitchell.

MR. LAWSON'S INSURANCE PROGRAM NOT ANNOUNCED

Chicago, Ill., Feb. 6.—After a continuous conference of nine hours Thomas W. Lawson of Boston, author of "Frenzied Finance," was coaxed out of Parlor N in the Palmer House last night long enough to confess that the mission which brought him to Chicago had failed to develop sufficiently for the general public to be taken into his confidence. In another twenty-four hours he said he might be in a position to make an announcement of interest. This will depend greatly however, on the result of a conference which he will have with Gov. Cummins of Iowa at Des Moines Wednesday. Mr. Lawson left for Iowa at 10:30 o'clock last night. Mr. Lawson admitted that yesterday's long conference concerned insurance problems, but refused to give even an inkling of the details of the deal which he is evolving.

THE CASTELLANES AT LAST IN THE DIVORCE COURT

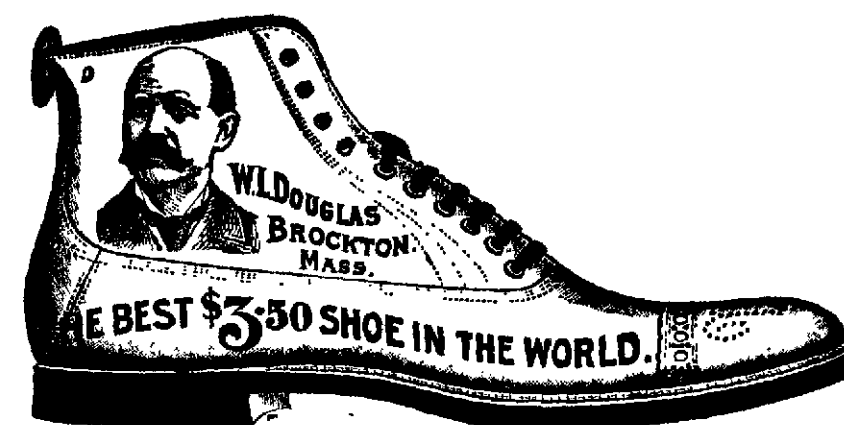

Paris, Feb. 6.—Countess Boni de Castellane (formerly Anna Gould) entered a plea for divorce yesterday. Representatives of the Count and Countess appeared before a judge, who, according to the French law, endeavored to arrange a conciliation before allowing a definite suit to proceed. It is said that the Judge was not successful and the suit will proceed, but owing to the secrecy in divorce proceedings here it is difficult to confirm this report.

Sensational reports have been circulated with reference to the Count's conduct and the name of a prominent society leader of Paris, a woman of very high standing, has been mentioned in connection with the affair, but the greatest reticence has been maintained by all the parties concerned relative to the progress of the negotiations looking to a conciliation and even this morning a favorable result was expected, especially as the Countess returned to her residence. It now appears that the efforts of those interested in bringing about a settlement of the differences between the Countess and the Count were unavailing.

CHAFF GATHERED UP

LITTLE STORIES WITH A TOUCH OF HUMOR.

Hiram Haymow Deliberately Adds Insult to Injury—Proposition Favored by Mr. Justwied—Why Meandering Mike Came Back.

The Discreet Opera Singer. "Madame, madame," cried the bell-boy at the door, "there is a burglar on this floor! Open the window and sing for help!"

The favorite of the opera stage frowned darkly. "I nevaire sing," she said, "unless I am quite of zee certaintment zat I get zee pr-r-ice."

Whereupon she closed her eyes and rolled over for another nap.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Out in the Cold.

Wearily Willie—This kicking me out of your barn into the snow is what I should call a rather summary proceeding.

Hiram Haymow—Waal, if you sit in that wet snow for a little while you'll think it's more wintry than summery!

A Shadow of Discontent.

"It is upon the farmer that the greatness of this country really depends," said the persuasive statesman.

"Yes," answered Farmer Cornitosel, "but sometimes I think I'd like to be one of the fellows that didn't have so much dependin' on 'em so I could have time to wear good clothes and go to a few parties."

A Consistent Mendicant.

"Are you here again?" said the kind-hearted woman.

"Yes, lady," answered Meandering Mike. "I have returned."

"Didn't I give you all the turkey and mince pie you wanted yesterday?" "You did. An' I'm back with one more request. Have you got any dyspepsia medicine you could spare?"

Oh!

Bill—Congratulations me; I'm engaged. Jill—Why, I understood she rejected you?

"Not on your life!" "Didn't she say 'No'?" "She certainly did."

"Well, I asked her if she could live without me."

Strange.

"Of all the stupid ignoramuses Neutrich is positively the worst."

"Yes?" "Positively! What—what he doesn't know would fill any quantity of books."

"Well, it seems to have filled one hankbook."

An Impression of Art.

"After all," said the transcendentalist, "what is art?"

"I don't know exactly," answered Mr. Cumrox, "but in a general way I should say it was most anything that cost you more than two dollars a seat to look at."

Mistaken.

Great Britain is going to send over a commission to investigate our asylums.

"How stupid those Britons are! They think all our idiots are in asylums."

Hungry, Too.

Mrs. Justwied—There's nothing in the house fit to eat. I'm going home to my mother.

Mr. Justwied (broke)—Wait till I get my hat and I'll go with you.

A Sure Sign.

Hicks—What on earth does Kick-away mean when he talks about "getting his inalienable rights?"

Wicks—I don't know what he means, except that he's been getting left again.

Discovered.

"Why is this cheese so full of holes?"

"That's all right. It needs all the fresh air it can get."

GOT HALF OF MINISTER'S FEE

Transaction Added Little to the Cabman's Bank Account.

John had the name of being the jolliest man in town. But to-night, which was apparently the worst night in the year, even John wore a long face, and as he swung his cab door open for the minister to enter, John's doleful expression was so noticeable that the minister inquired if he were thinking about the work of cleaning off the mud in the morning.

"No, it is not the work that I'm thinking of. If I could make as much as you this evening, I wouldn't mind it a bit."

"Well," replied the minister, "I am to marry a couple this evening and I'll give you half of my fee for driving me out and back."

"It is a deal," replied John.

After an hour of dreary driving through cold and rain John drew up in front of a small house in which the service was to take place. It was two long hours of cold waiting before the minister re-entered the cab, and the home drive was made. With a spirit of expectancy John once more swung open the cab door in front of the minister's house. The minister stepped out, and as he entered his own door he turned and said:

"Five hundred thanks, John," leaving the bewildered cabman to figure out what his exact fee had been.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Impossible to Trace Clearly the Words "Tart" and "Pie."

Usage alone must decide the issue between "pie" and "tart," which has returned to us with the gooseberries, says the London Chronicle. Philology, at any rate, draws no clear distinction. It only traces back "tart" to the Indian "tortus," twisted—the pastry being the twisted part, of course, while it is very doubtful about "pie." On the whole, Skeat's conjecture that this expresses the miscellaneous nature of the contents is persuasive. All the "pies" seem to go back to the original one, the magpie—in Latin, "pica"—from whose black and white aspect comes "pied" and "piebald." The old ordinal or service book was called "pica" or "pie" because of the appearance of the black letter type on a white page, and the edible pie, having equally mixed contents, may have been christened after this by medieval humor. Printers' language retains both "pica" for a kind of type and "pi" for type all jumbled up.

"Demagogue" Means Leader.

"Demagogue," which means merely a leader of the people, seems doomed to attract an evil sense to itself. In English, Dryden and Swift used it in a good or neutral sense, the latter applying it to Demosthenes and Cicero, and John Richard Green wrote enthusiastically of Pym as "the grandest of demagogues." But the manner in which it was used in the "Elton Basilike," attributed to Charles I, led Milton to speak of it as "a goblin word," and that is how it is invariably used today. In its native Greek its history was similar. It could be applied to statesmen such as Pericles, but, from being used by Greek Tories contemptuously to characterize such popular leaders as the leather seller Cleon, it could eventually be defined by Aristotle as "flatterer of the democracy."

Ownership of Extracted Teeth.

It is well known that a corpse is not property, but what about an extracted tooth? So far as we know the point has not arisen in the courts of this country. At Gera, in Germany, however, it has just been decided that the tooth still belongs to the man after it has left his jaw. The dentist contended that a tooth evicted from occupancy with the full consent of its landlord became ownerless and derelict and as the particular tooth in question was curiously shaped he proposed to keep it. But the patient wished to have it. And the patient won.

Living on Next to Nothing.

What a thrifty person can do on a miserably small income was shown by a one-time curate of Thulfield, in Cumberland, Eng., Alexander Naughtley, whose entire income was £8 15s a year. Mr. Naughtley lived absolutely alone, slept on a bed of straw, and cooked his own scanty food; but he never failed to present a respectable appearance to the world, while not a word of complaint ever passed his lips.—London Answers.

Keeping Strength at Maximum.

"First, last and all the time, if you wish to avoid catching cold," says a writer in a local medical journal, "keep your strength at the maximum. Whenever the vitality is lowered by overwork, poor food, worry or by any other cause, our power of resistance is impaired and an opening is made for the thousand and one agencies of disease which are continually seeking to break in."

Mirror Saved Children.

An almost miraculous escape from death was that of two little children in a bungalow in Bengal. A tiger rushed out of the jungle and broke in after the children. As he rushed at them he came across a looking glass, and there he saw what he took to be another tiger rushing at him. Furiously he attacked his reflection, smashing the glass into ten thousand pieces. The noise and excitement so frightened him that he fled into the jungle, leaving the children unharmed.

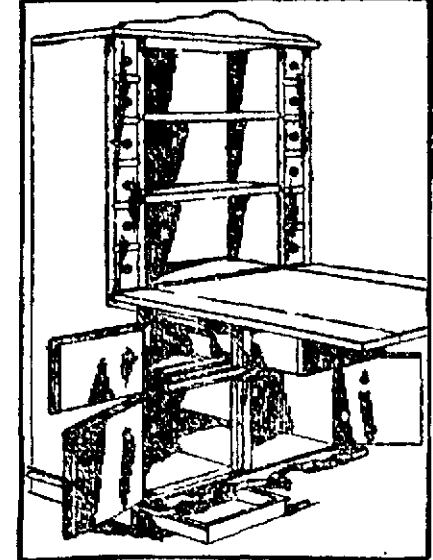

SHOWING THE WORLD'S PROGRESS

Wonders of Science.

If we no longer live in an age when in Lord Beaconsfield's famous phrase, "Young men prattle protoplasm," it is only because of the inexhaustible resources of science, which have distracted our attention with later discoveries. Nowadays the public mind is prepared for anything and therefore the announcement that a practical process has been discovered for extracting nitrogen from the atmosphere, and for making it available to agriculture as the basis of a chemical manure, will probably only create a mild sensation. The announcement, if it be substantiated, is of the utmost consequence, however. It solves a problem which has long disquieted both agriculturists and scientists. The fertility of the soil is by no means inexhaustible, and the supply of fertilizing material from the Chilian nitrate fields is also confined to easily calculable dimensions. "Wherewith then shall the earth be salted?" is the question that presents itself, and it is a question which certain Norwegian experimentalists claim to have solved.

Combination Cabinet.

It is an absolute necessity to have a cupboard and refrigerator in every household; but an added advantage is to have both in combination with a cabinet. The housewife will recognize the advantage of having a cabinet in close proximity to the refrigerator, as many articles of food can be placed in it and still be near enough to the ice to be kept cool. The piece of furniture shown here, devised by a Canadian, is made in three parts constructed in combination and arranged as an upright stand. The latter is divided into two lower sections—the refrigerator and cabinet and the upper section, or cupboard. The refrigerator is again divided into a cooling box and an ice chest, both being closed by a door. The cooling box has a number of perforated shelves for supporting articles. Extending the entire height of the cupboard at each side is a tier of drawers, the remainder being divided into shelves. The door consists of three sections hinged together, the three opening downward and forming the top of a table. When it is desired to arrange the furniture as a table or workboard a brace extending from the shelf is drawn out and the door of the cupboard laid down and allowed to rest on the brace, which supports the outer end and also prevents the door from sagging. By arranging the several parts in combination the inventor has provided several conveniences in a very compact form, the combination being especially useful in small places where room is at a premium.

Turbine-Driven Locomotive.

So successful has been the turbine or stationary and marine engines that it is not strange that efforts should be made to use it in connection with locomotives. It has been proposed to mount a steam boiler and turbine on a locomotive, and use the power to drive a dynamo which would supply current to the motors similar to those of an ordinary electric locomotive. Recently, however, Prof. Stumpf, of the Royal Technical School at Charlottenburg, Germany, has invented a locomotive where the turbines are directly connected with the axles.

There are three driving axles, and the plan involves using the steam in successive stages in the turbines, which are placed outside of each driving wheel. The steam is introduced into the first turbine on one side through a pipe direct from the boiler, and then passes successively through the second and third turbines on the same side. It then goes to a set of turbine on the other side of the locomotive, from the last of which the exhausted steam passes into the stack through the exhaust blast nozzle. The outcome of the new invention will be awaited with interest, not only on account of the extension of use of the turbine, but also for the fact that the modern steam locomotive is an uneconomical piece of machinery, requiring given quantity of power.—Montreal Herald.

Entering a Demurrer.

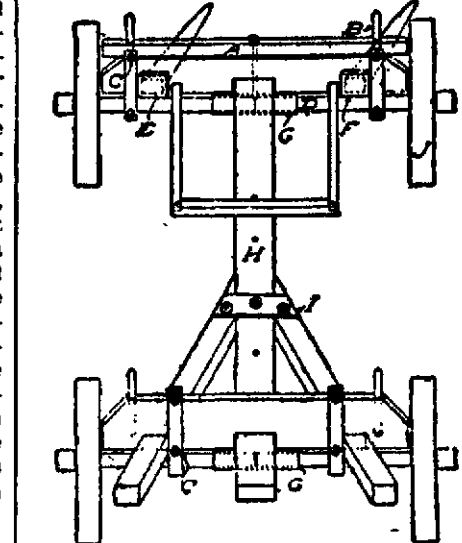

"Obviously," said the lecturer, "what we need is a more elastic currency, for the reason—"

"Not me," interrupted the shabby man in the front row. "What I need is a more adhesive currency." Whereat there was loud applause. It appeared there were others.

TRUCK HANDY FOR FARM WORK.

Design Shown Can Be Constructed Very Cheaply.

Many uses can be found for a low wheeled, broad tired truck that can be driven over soft ground. If stones are to be hauled the lifting will be made easier, and in spraying potatoes, a pump can be rigged on the platform to distribute the mixture over half a dozen rows at a time. The truck shown in the illustration can be constructed at very little expense, except for bolts. The butt of a large elm or maple can be sawed off to make the four wheels. An oak tree, if it is available, will furnish the timber for the axles and frame.

Material for Foundation.

I wish to build a stone foundation under house 30 feet by 40 feet. The house has a heavy frame of ten-inch pine timber. There is a large cellar under it which, however, does not extend to the outside wall. What would the stone foundation cost?

The amount of material for a stone wall for cellar under a house 30 feet by 40 feet, 7 feet high and 1 foot and a half thick, would be as follows: Stone, 14 3-4 cords; sand, 15 yards; lime, 75 bushels. If cement mortar is used it would take 30 barrels cement. To raise house use jack screws, raising the house to height required, care being taken to raise it evenly all around so as not to crack the plaster. Block up with blocks at each corner. Use a needle beam, having same passing through under sills and ends resting on blocks outside of house. Keep this beam about two feet back from corner of house so as to allow the corner to be built up to sills. When walls are done remove beam and fill up the space where the beam was. To block up center of sills use a beam across under sill, one end resting on a post in cellar and the other end on blocks outside of house. This will give you a clear space for excavating building walls.

Building Without Frames for Molding.

I am thinking of building a house, and I wish to do as much of the work as possible myself. I have good sand and gravel to use for concrete, but I find the machines for molding the blocks are expensive. Would it pay to try and make a frame for molding or could a hollow wall be built with out molding into blocks?

If you do not care to buy or rent a machine for making the hollow concrete blocks, would advise you building a hollow concrete wall, which is done the same as a solid wall, except having a beveled plank set in center of wall and when walls are built to top of planks these can be lifted out leaving a space. Or take two 7-8 inch boards with long wedges between them set in position and when ready to lift, loosen wedges and the boards will come out easily. A good way to tie wall together is by using hoop iron bent up at each end and bedded in the concrete. For a dwelling house where the walls are strapped, lathed and plastered. A solid concrete wall is considered to be a good dry and warm wall. The air space between the lath and wall prevents the dampness from striking through.

The Kiln.

Would you inform me as to the best way to build a small tar kiln for taking tar from pine trees?

A kiln is not always necessary for obtaining the tar from pine, though there should be some covering. If the forests of North Carolina the wood is piled in conical heaps, covered with earth and then fired, the tar being collected at the bottom of the pile. A kiln of brick or stone could be built the size required, the essential part being the arrangement at the bottom for receiving the tar.

Antiquity of Wheat.

Of the cereals it will be agreed that wheat occupies a pre-eminent position, and, no matter in what country it is grown, it is held in the highest esteem, being even in some cases looked upon with something approaching reverence. Its origin dates back from time immemorial, for reference is made to its being cultivated in China as far remote a period as 3,000 B. C., being likewise considered a very important crop in ancient Egypt and Palestine, just as it is in all the temperate regions of Europe, Asia and Africa. It is also recorded that common wheat, contained in vessels which were so thoroughly sealed as even to retain both the form and color of the grain was also discovered in the sepulchres of the Egyptian kings at the time when the French army entered Egypt, these grains being closely examined by naturalists and scientists accompanying the army.

Well, after all, isn't it better to be bald than to comb your hair as some men do them?

A sense of one's own integrity will make one pass by injuries more easily.—Bishop Wilson.

Every housekeeper should know that if they will buy Defiance Cold Water Starch for laundry use they will save not only time, because it never sticks to the iron, but because each package contains 16 oz.—one full pound—of starch. All other Cold Water Starches are put up in 8-ounce packages, and the price is the same, 10 cents. Then again because Defiance Starch is free from all injurious chemicals. If your grocer tries to sell you a 12-oz. package it is because he has a stock on hand which he wishes to dispose of before he puts in Defiance. He knows that Defiance Starch has printed on every package in large letters and figures "16 oz." Demand Defiance and save much time and money and the annoyance of the iron sticking. Defiance never sticks.

Whose Say-so is Best?

With nearly all medicines put up for sale through druggists, one has to take the maker's say-so alone as to their curative value. Of course, such testimony is not that of a disinterested party and accordingly is not to be given the same credit as if written from disinterested motives. Dr. Pierce's medicines, however, form a single and therefore striking exception to this rule. Their claims to the confidence of invalids does not rest solely upon their maker's say-so, or praise. Their ingredients are matters of public knowledge, being printed on each separate bottle wrapper. Thus invalid sufferers are taken into Dr. Pierce's full confidence. Scores of leading medical men have written enough to fill volumes in praise of the curative value of the several ingredients entering into these well-known medicines.

Amongst these writers we find such medical lights as Prof. F. C. Ellingwood, M. D., of the University of Chicago; Prof. H. A. Hale, of the same city; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati, Ohio; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cleveland, Ohio; Dr. Grover Coe, of New York; Dr. Bartholomew of Jefferson Medical College, of Pa., and scores of others. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures the worst cases of female weakness, prostration, anteverision and retroversion and corrects irregularities, cures painful periods, dries up disagreeable and weakening drains, sometimes known as pelvic catarrh and a multitude of other diseases peculiar to women. Bear in mind it is not a patent nor even a secret medicine, but the "Favorite Prescription" of a regularly educated physician of large experience in the cure of women's peculiar ailments, who frankly and confidently takes his patients into his full confidence by telling them exactly what his "Prescription" is composed of. Of no other medicine put up for women's special maladies and sold through druggists, can it be said that the maker is not afraid to deal frankly, openly and honorably, by letting every patient using the same know exactly what she is taking.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence is guarded as sacredly secret and womanly confidences are protected by professional privacy. Address Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

How to preserve health and beauty is told in Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser. It is free. For a paper-covered copy send Dr. E. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. 10¢ in stamps to cover mailing only; in cloth binding 31 stamps. Dr. Pierce's Pellets cure constipation.

Storekeepers report that the extra quantity, together with the superior quality of Defiance Starch makes it next to impossible to sell any other brand.

Hunting in Korea.

Korea affords good opportunities for shooting both large and small game, and has a delightful climate at all seasons of the year. The new American line of steamers, Japan to Korea, is already available.

"We Have Many Similar."

The following is an extract from a letter received from Mr. H. H. Meyers of Stuttgart, Ark.: "You would greatly oblige me if you would introduce Hunt's Lighting Oil at Milledgeville, Ill., as I have many friends and relatives there, in whom I am much concerned, and I understand the Oil is not kept there. I can recommend it as the best medicine I ever had in my house. It cured me of a bad case of the bloody flux in less than one-half an hour, and it cured my granddaughter of a bad case of cholera morbus in a very short time."

It isn't what you know, but what you can make others believe you know that counts.

Hundreds of dealers say the extra quantity and superior quality of Defiance Starch is fast taking place of all other brands. Others say they cannot sell any other starch.

As we journey through this vale of tears we find that many people express their gratitude with cold storage thanks.

A DESPAIRING WOMAN.

Weak, Nervous and Wretched From Wasting Kidney Troubles.

Mrs. Henry A. Reamer, Main and Garst Sts., South Bend, Ind., says:

"When I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I was so weak I could hardly drag myself across the room. I was wretched and nervous, and had backache, bearing-down pain, headache, dizziness and weak eyes. Dropsy set in and bloating of the chest choked me and threatened the heart. I had little hope, but to my untold surprise Doan's Kidney Pills brought me relief and saved my life. I shall never forget it."

GEN. GRANT'S SHREWD SCHEME.

Long Time Enemies Reconciled by Humor of Situation.

The officers on Governor's Island are telling an excellent story on Gen. Fred Grant. It seems that two soldiers had been in the habit of getting into a scrap every day and were constantly up before their colonel for discipline. Every sort of mild punishment was tried without avail till at last the commander of the department of the east was appealed to. After taking a horizontal view of it the general sent for the sergeant major and said: "Just see that those two men, Crowley and Hitchens, clean all the barrack windows, Crowley to do the outside while Hitchens attends to the inside, and, recollect, neither man is to leave any window till the other has finished." The scheme was highly successful. The enemies scowled thunderously, even murderously, at each other for five windows, but flesh and blood could hold out no longer. At the sixth they burst out laughing and have been the best of friends ever since.

It must be an awful lot of fun to be so rich you can grumble about how poor you are.

Now, if the milliners would only convince the women that turkey feathers were the proper thing for trimming hats—But, pshaw! If they did the price of turkey feathers would be as high as the wise turkey roosts.

Lights Out

"So that young man's gone at last," said the girl's mother. "You and he have been occupying the parlor pretty regularly here of late, and I'd like to know what his intentions are. Do you know?"

"Well," was the dear girl's ambiguous reply, "he keeps me a good deal in the dark."—Philadelphia Press.

FACIAL PARALYSIS

Nervous Distortion of Face Cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

What appears to be a slight nervous attack may be the forerunner of a severe disorder. No nervous sufferer should neglect the warning symptoms, but should see that the starved nerves are nourished before the injury to the delicate organism has gone to an extent that renders a cure a difficult matter. The nerves receive their nourishment through the blood, the same as every other part of the body, and the best nerve tonic and food is Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The experience of Mr. Harry Bemis, of Truthville, Washington county, N. Y., substantiates this. "I had been feeling badly for a long time," said Mr. Bemis, "and in the early part of September, 1902, I was compelled to quit work on account of my ill health. My trouble was at first extreme nervousness, then my sight became affected and I consulted an oculist who said I was suffering from paralysis. He treated me for some time, but I got no benefit. I tried another doctor and again failed to obtain any relief. My nervousness increased. Slight noises would almost make me wild. My mouth was drawn so I could scarcely eat and one eye was affected so I could hardly see. I had very little use of my limbs, in fact I was almost a complete wreck. I am all right now and am at work. This is because I followed my wife's advice and took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She had used the same remedy herself with the most gratifying results and she persuaded me to try them when it appeared that the doctors were unable to help me. They acted very surely in my case; my face came back into shape and in time I was entirely well."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists or by mail by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. A booklet on Nervous Disorders sent free on request.

ART NOT BOUGHT BY THE TON.

Involving Contract That MacMonnies Came Near Making.

Of late years Frederick MacMonnies, the sculptor, has had so many commissions to do groups of sculpture that he has made it a rule never to enter a competition with other artists for an order, says the World's Work. In this connection a story is told of an American city that asked him to enter a design for army and navy groups for a soldiers' and sailors' monument. He declined to compete. The commission was tendered him outright. He submitted sketches of his idea for the groups. The committee in charge of the monument wrote him, asking:

"How many tons of granite do you intend to use in the base?"

His reply was: "If you are in the business of buying granite, you may use as much as you want, one ton or 100,000 tons. I am an artist and I have never yet heard of art being bought by the pound."

The question was dropped until the contract for the commission was drawn. When Mr. MacMonnies received it, he discovered in it a clause providing that in case the bronzes were ever thrown down from their base for any cause whatever, and any person or property should be injured, he on his heels forever should be liable for the damage sustained. He returned the contract without comment, unsigned. When the committee wrote him asking the reason, his brief reply was: "Your lawyers are too sharp."

WANTED TO MAKE HEAVY BET.

Jack McAuliffe Went High in the Animal Scale.

"When Val'd'Or won the Prix Monarque at Maisons-Laffitte, near Paris, not long ago," said Francis Breckenridge Douglas, a breeder of thoroughbreds at Lexington, Ky., "I heard the most remarkable wages ever offered on a horse. I happened to be near Representative Timothy D. Sullivan of New York, and his party of Americans. The French bookmakers have borrowed English slang betting terms, but they have changed the values. A 'pony' is 500 francs, and a 'monkey' is 12,500 francs.

In the hearing of our party William K. Vanderbilt bet a 'monkey' on Val'd'Or, and William Duke, his trainer, laid a 'pony' on the same horse. Mr. Sullivan's friend, Jack McAuliffe, the former lightweight pugilist champion of the world, liked another horse. Also he heard the 'pony' and 'monkey' bets. With his cigar tucked up in the left corner of his mouth, Jack strode up to the French bookie, pointed at the card and commanded: "Here! I'll bet you an elephant on my horse, Finasseur!"

"Jerry" Was Registered. When the late Col. Rowell was chairman of the board of registrars of voters in Somerville the applicant for registration was given the full test required by law, and frequently the examinations of a would-be voter was extremely amusing, says a writer in the Boston Herald.

On one occasion "Jerry" Shea, a pedler, appeared before the board. He was a shrewd chap, and possessed a keen sense of humor. After the usual preliminary questions, "Jerry" was invited to put his hand into the box containing a number of cards bearing extracts from the state constitution and draw forth one and read it to the colonel.

It happened that the card he drew had reference to the salary of the Governor. "Jerry" read it slowly, and apparently painfully. When he had finished the reading the colonel glanced at him sharply and said: "What is salary?"

Jerry smiled and said, most blandly: "Why, colonel, I have sold all that I had to-day for 8 cents a bunch." He was registered.

Functions of Taste Nerves. A wine expert was tasting wines. In tasting sweet wines he lowered his head upon his breast. In tasting dry or sour ones he threw his head back.

"Why do you do that?" said a spectator.

"I don't know. Habit, I guess," the expert replied.

"You do it," the spectator explained, "because the front of your tongue can only taste sweet things and the back of it only sour things and the movement of your head is for the purpose of throwing the wines upon the right part of your tongue. The taste nerves have different functions, some handling sweets, others sour, others bitters and so on, just as the muscles have different functions, some working the leg and some the arm."

"Well, well," said the expert, "You surprise me. At the same time I'm sure you are right. Everybody, come to think of it, holds sweet things on the forepart of the tongue to get their flavor and sour things on the hind part."

Where Dreams Are Sold. At the silent sign of the Poppy. At a shop that is never old. Where the twilight silence lingers. It is there that dreams are sold.

There's the scent of love's lost roses. The soft echo of childhood's laugh; There's the ring of empty kisses. For the white lips never quaff.

To the crimson sign of the Poppy. We shall come when the daylight dies. When the curfew music quivers. 'Neath the gray of evening skies.

Just beyond the gates of sunset. Where the grim toll of death we pay. We shall find the shop of dream-wares. Where the poppies hang away.

So, we long for the dusk of twilight. When with wealth or no earthly gold. We shall come where sleep-flowers cluster. To the shops where dreams are sold. —Canadian Magazine.

CONFERRED TITLE ON HIMSELF.

How San Francisco Merchant Acquired Military Honor.

"The martial spirit that pervades Europe makes the average civilian very much of a nonentity as he jays about the gay capitals across the water," remarked Henry Stern. "Which leads up to the advice that, if you want to attract attention when you go to Europe, you want to have a military title attached to your name. The fact was forcibly impressed on my mind while I was on a European tour some time back. The clerk at the Grand Hotel in Paris remarked to me that two distinguished officers from my city had been spending some time at the hotel a little while before I was curious to see who they were, so we looked back over the register for their names. We found them without much trouble. The first to greet my gaze was written down in this fashion:

"Col. M. H. Hecht, San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A."

"Further down on the page," interrupted the clerk, "you will notice the name of Gen. Salz."

"There, in a bold hand, was inscribed 'Jacob Salz, Gen. Mer., San Francisco, Cal., U. S. A.'"

"What actually happened was this as I subsequently learned. Salz, who is well known as the owner of a big tannery at Benicia, arrived at the hotel, and, noticing Col. Hecht's name and title on the register, decided that he needed a title himself. So he wrote after his name what he thought was a proper abbreviation for 'general merchandise.' It worked beautifully. During his stay at the hotel he was respectfully addressed as 'Gen. Salz.'—San Francisco Chronicle.

Statue of Queen Alexandra.

The first statue of Queen Alexandra on English soil will be erected in the grounds of the London Hospital, to commemorate the completion of the rebuilding operations, which have cost £45,000. The sculptor will be George Wade, and the statue, which will be of bronze, will be of heroic size. It will cost £1,500, and of this sum £1,300 has been subscribed already by the committee, the staff, and a few personal friends.

Swift & Company

Year 1905 Sales.

$200,000,000.

This total is realized from the sale of fresh meats (beef, mutton and pork), provisions, produce (poultry, butter and eggs), soaps, glues, oils, bones, fertilizers, feathers, casings, hides, wools, pelts and other by-products derived from cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry.

Margin of Profit.

The industry is operated on a margin of less than 2 cents to each dollar of sales. Swift & Co. do not sell at retail. Their entire output is sold at wholesale to many thousands of dealers in various parts of the world. There are hundreds of local slaughterers throughout the United States, who buy their live stock in competition with the packer doing an interstate and international business. Likewise the packer must sell in competition with the local slaughterers. There are no secret processes in the industry, no complicated and expensive factories, and as live stock can be purchased in almost every hamlet and city, and the preparation of meats is simple in the extreme, local slaughtering will long remain a factor in the production of fresh meats and provisions.

Economic Advantages.

The large packing houses will, however, always have these advantages: Locations at the chief live stock centers, with the opportunity to buy the best live stock; manufacturing in large quantities, at the minimum of expense; utilization of all waste material; refrigeration; mechanical appliances; highly efficient business management. These advantages are reflected in the quality of the packer's output, a quality that has reached its highest development in the products bearing the name and brand of "Swift."

Purchasing Live Stock.

The principal live stock centers are Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, St.

A man's idea of an angel is a woman who doesn't talk about her neighbors.

Louis, St. Joseph, St. Paul and Fort Worth.

The same methods of purchasing cattle, sheep and hogs prevail at all cities. At Chicago, which is the largest market, there are about two hundred and fifty buyers, representing packers, local slaughterers in various cities and exporters. Of this number, less than a score are employed by Swift & Company.

The farmer ships his live stock to Chicago, consigns them to a commission firm at the Union Stock Yards, who sees that they are unloaded and put in pens. Then the buyers inspect them, make their offers to the commission dealer, who accepts or rejects as his judgment dictates. All buying must be finished at 3 o'clock each day, and the buyer must pay spot cash. If the commission man has no satisfactory offers, he can hold his stock over to the next day. He gets his commission from the farmer, and naturally strives to get the highest possible price for his client.

Wholesale Distributing Houses.

A wholesale distributing house is a giant refrigerator, but instead of shelves there are trolley rails, from which are suspended hooks to hang the carcasses. Some of the houses cost as much as a hundred thousand dollars to build and equip. As a rule they are of pressed brick, the insides being lined—floor, walls and ceiling—with highly polished hardwood. The floors are covered daily with fresh sawdust, and all are kept spotlessly clean. There are over three hundred of these wholesale houses in various cities of the United States, and the public is always welcome to visit them.

Packing Plants.

All the Swift & Company plants are located at the great live stock markets, in the heart of the great agricultural sections, where can be purchased the finest grades of cattle, sheep and hogs. We have seven packing plants, employing at each from two to eight thousand persons.

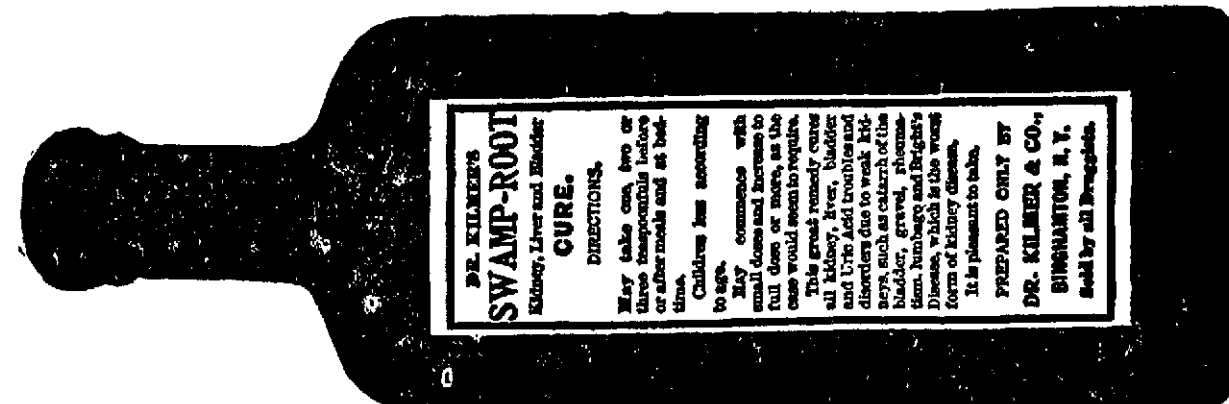

The following gives the locations and sizes of the different plants:

CERTIFICATE OF PURITY

This is to Certify that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is purely vegetable and does not contain any calomel, mercury, creosote, morphine, opium, strychnine, cocaine, nitrate potash (salt-petre), bromide potassium, narcotic alkaloid, whiskey, wine or any harmful or habit producing drugs. Swamp-Root was discovered through scientific research and study by Dr. Kilmer, who graduated with honors and is now actively engaged in the practice of his profession, which calling he has successfully followed many years.

Employees.

The total number of persons employed in all the Swift packing plants and branch houses aggregate over 26,000 persons. Conditions for employees in the various manufacturing and operating departments is continually improving with the construction of new buildings and the installation of new and up-to-date equipment.

Sanitation and Hygiene.

The housewife makes no greater effort to keep her kitchen clean than we do to keep in sanitary and hygienic condition our abattoirs. They are thoroughly scrubbed at the close of each day's operations, and automatic appliances are used wherever possible in order to eliminate the personal handling of meats. Rigid rules governing these points are strictly enforced; laxity means dismissal.

Visitors Always Welcome.

No other industry in the world gives such a cordial welcome to visitors as Swift & Co. We keep open house the year around, and maintain a corps of specially trained guides, with special elevators and rest rooms. In one year we have entertained over a quarter of a million of men and women; in one day—Grand Army Day, 1901—we entertained 23,000. Among our visitors have been ambassadors from foreign governments, princes, noblemen and distinguished citizens from all lands and eminent folks from every state in the Union. We wish to familiarize the public with our methods, and the best way to do that is to let the public see for itself. We have no secret processes or methods in any department.

Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon.

Swift's Premium Hams and Bacon are more widely and favorably known than any other brand. Their popularity is due to the uniform quality and flavor of the meat, and to their fine appearance when received from the dealer. Each piece is branded on the rind, "Swift's Premium U. S. Inspected," and wrapped in cheesecloth and white parchment paper.

Look for the brand, "Swift's Premium," when buying hams and bacon.

Is a strictly pure lard, kettle rendered, and put up in 3, 5 and 10-pound sealed pails. It is America's Standard Lard, and enjoys a high reputation and an enormous sale.

Swift's Soaps.

An interesting feature of a trip through the Chicago plant is a visit to the soap factory, one of the largest and most complete in this country. There we manufacture numerous toilet and laundry soaps, and washing powders.

Among which are: Wool Soap, widely and favorably known; for toilet and bath, and washing fine fabrics.

A TRIBUTE TO OUR FELLOW TOWNSMAN.

Editor Ben F. White, of the Holdenville Times, has an extended editorial in which, with the approach of statehood, he emphasizes the importance of the people choosing good men for the offices of the new state. Mr. White lays especial stress upon the qualification of a good U. S. Senator. After exhorting the people to beware of candidates who have been identified with corporate interests, he pays the following tribute to our fellow townsman, Judge Henry M. Furman:

"There is a man who is understood to be a candidate for the office of United States senator from the new and 'imperial' state of Oklahoma, against whom not a breath of suspicion as to where his sympathies lie has ever been suggested. He is one of the people; he is a great, big-hearted democrat, whom to know is to love. He is a man thoroughly in earnest in his endeavor to uplift mankind, and whose every heartbeat is in sympathy with mankind. He is thoroughly capable, a fluent and convincing orator, a successful lawyer, a sturdy, honest man and would make the new state an ideal senator. As one of the first senators to represent this new state in the national congress the Times nominates the Honorable Henry M. Furman of Ada."

COTTON CROOKEDNESS.

Some gamblers made the cotton unginned the middle of January 1,000,000 bales. The government had information showing it to be only one-fourth that amount. To give out such information would be to publish the truth and, incidentally, to raise or to keep up the price. It should have been given out as the official estimate.

Director North claims that the purpose of the reports is to serve the cotton raisers, yet he must see that the publication of the estimate of unginned cotton, which he refused to give out, raised the price of cotton 19 points in six minutes. Just how a failure to give out this information would help anybody but the bears, it remains for Director North or Secretary Wilson to explain.—Dallas News.

The New Marshal's Regime.

By the last of this week A. K. Porter, recently appointed U. S. marshal for this district, will likely assume his official duties and select his deputies. His appointment is expected to be confirmed by the Senate Tuesday.

In all there are fifty-three deputies to be named in this district. Those who have talked with Mr. Porter say he is not disposed to make any sweeping changes in the personnel of the force. In case local fights over deputyships should arise, and the filing of charges and mud-slinging began, it is reported that Mr. Porter will simply import old frontier friends—and good official timber without—from far-off Wyoming. But this he will not do, it is said, unless petty factional fights force it.

It is to be hoped that the Southern District will be spared the spectacle of further political dirt-tossing, such as characterized the recent contests for appointments, at Washington, and that Mr. Porter can consistently select capable subordinates from home material.

Commercial Club Meeting.

There were a goodly number of members present Monday night at the adjourned meeting of the Commercial Club.
Upon motion a committee on membership was appointed, consisting of Dick Simpson, John Beard and the club secretary. It was made their duty to thoroughly canvass the town with membership lists. When a citizen signs the list he thereby becomes a member, entitled to all rights and privileges of the body and subject to pay initiation fee and regular dues.
W. B. Jones and Otis B. Weaver were appointed a committee to have installed in front of the hall an electric light sign to give illuminated notice of meeting nights.
The proposition to send a delegate to Washington met with no encouragement.
President Chambliss gave notice that it was time to hold the annual election of officers. By motion, Monday night, Feb. 12, was set as the time for the election, and it was agreed that cigars should be provided for the occasion.
Dr. Ligon and John Beard lead an able discussion of the value of advertising the town.

Bro Colbert Calls.

Rev. H. Colbert of Franks, an old subscriber, gave the News a pleasant call Tuesday. The Colberts are one of the oldest and most influential families among the Chickasaws and have ever been foremost in the tribe's affairs.
Bro. Colbert is pastor of the Shiloh Baptist Church, near Franks. He says he has twelve members, all women. But the Chickasaw men and some white people attend the services, which are conducted entirely in Chickasaw language.

Council Meeting.

The city council convened Monday night in regular semi-monthly session. The monthly reports of officers were submitted and approved and the usual batch of bills were passed on and warrants ordered to be issued in payment thereof.

O. W. Graves was employed as sexton of the cemetery and authorized to purchase necessary tools and material.

The body adjourned to meet again the first of next week to take up some important matters pending.
